Fans engagement app for sports teams

The scope of the project was to design a universal app that would bring forward information buried on secondary screens in the original app.

I was in charge of the complete design. From initial flows, to wireframes, to prototypes and final mockups.

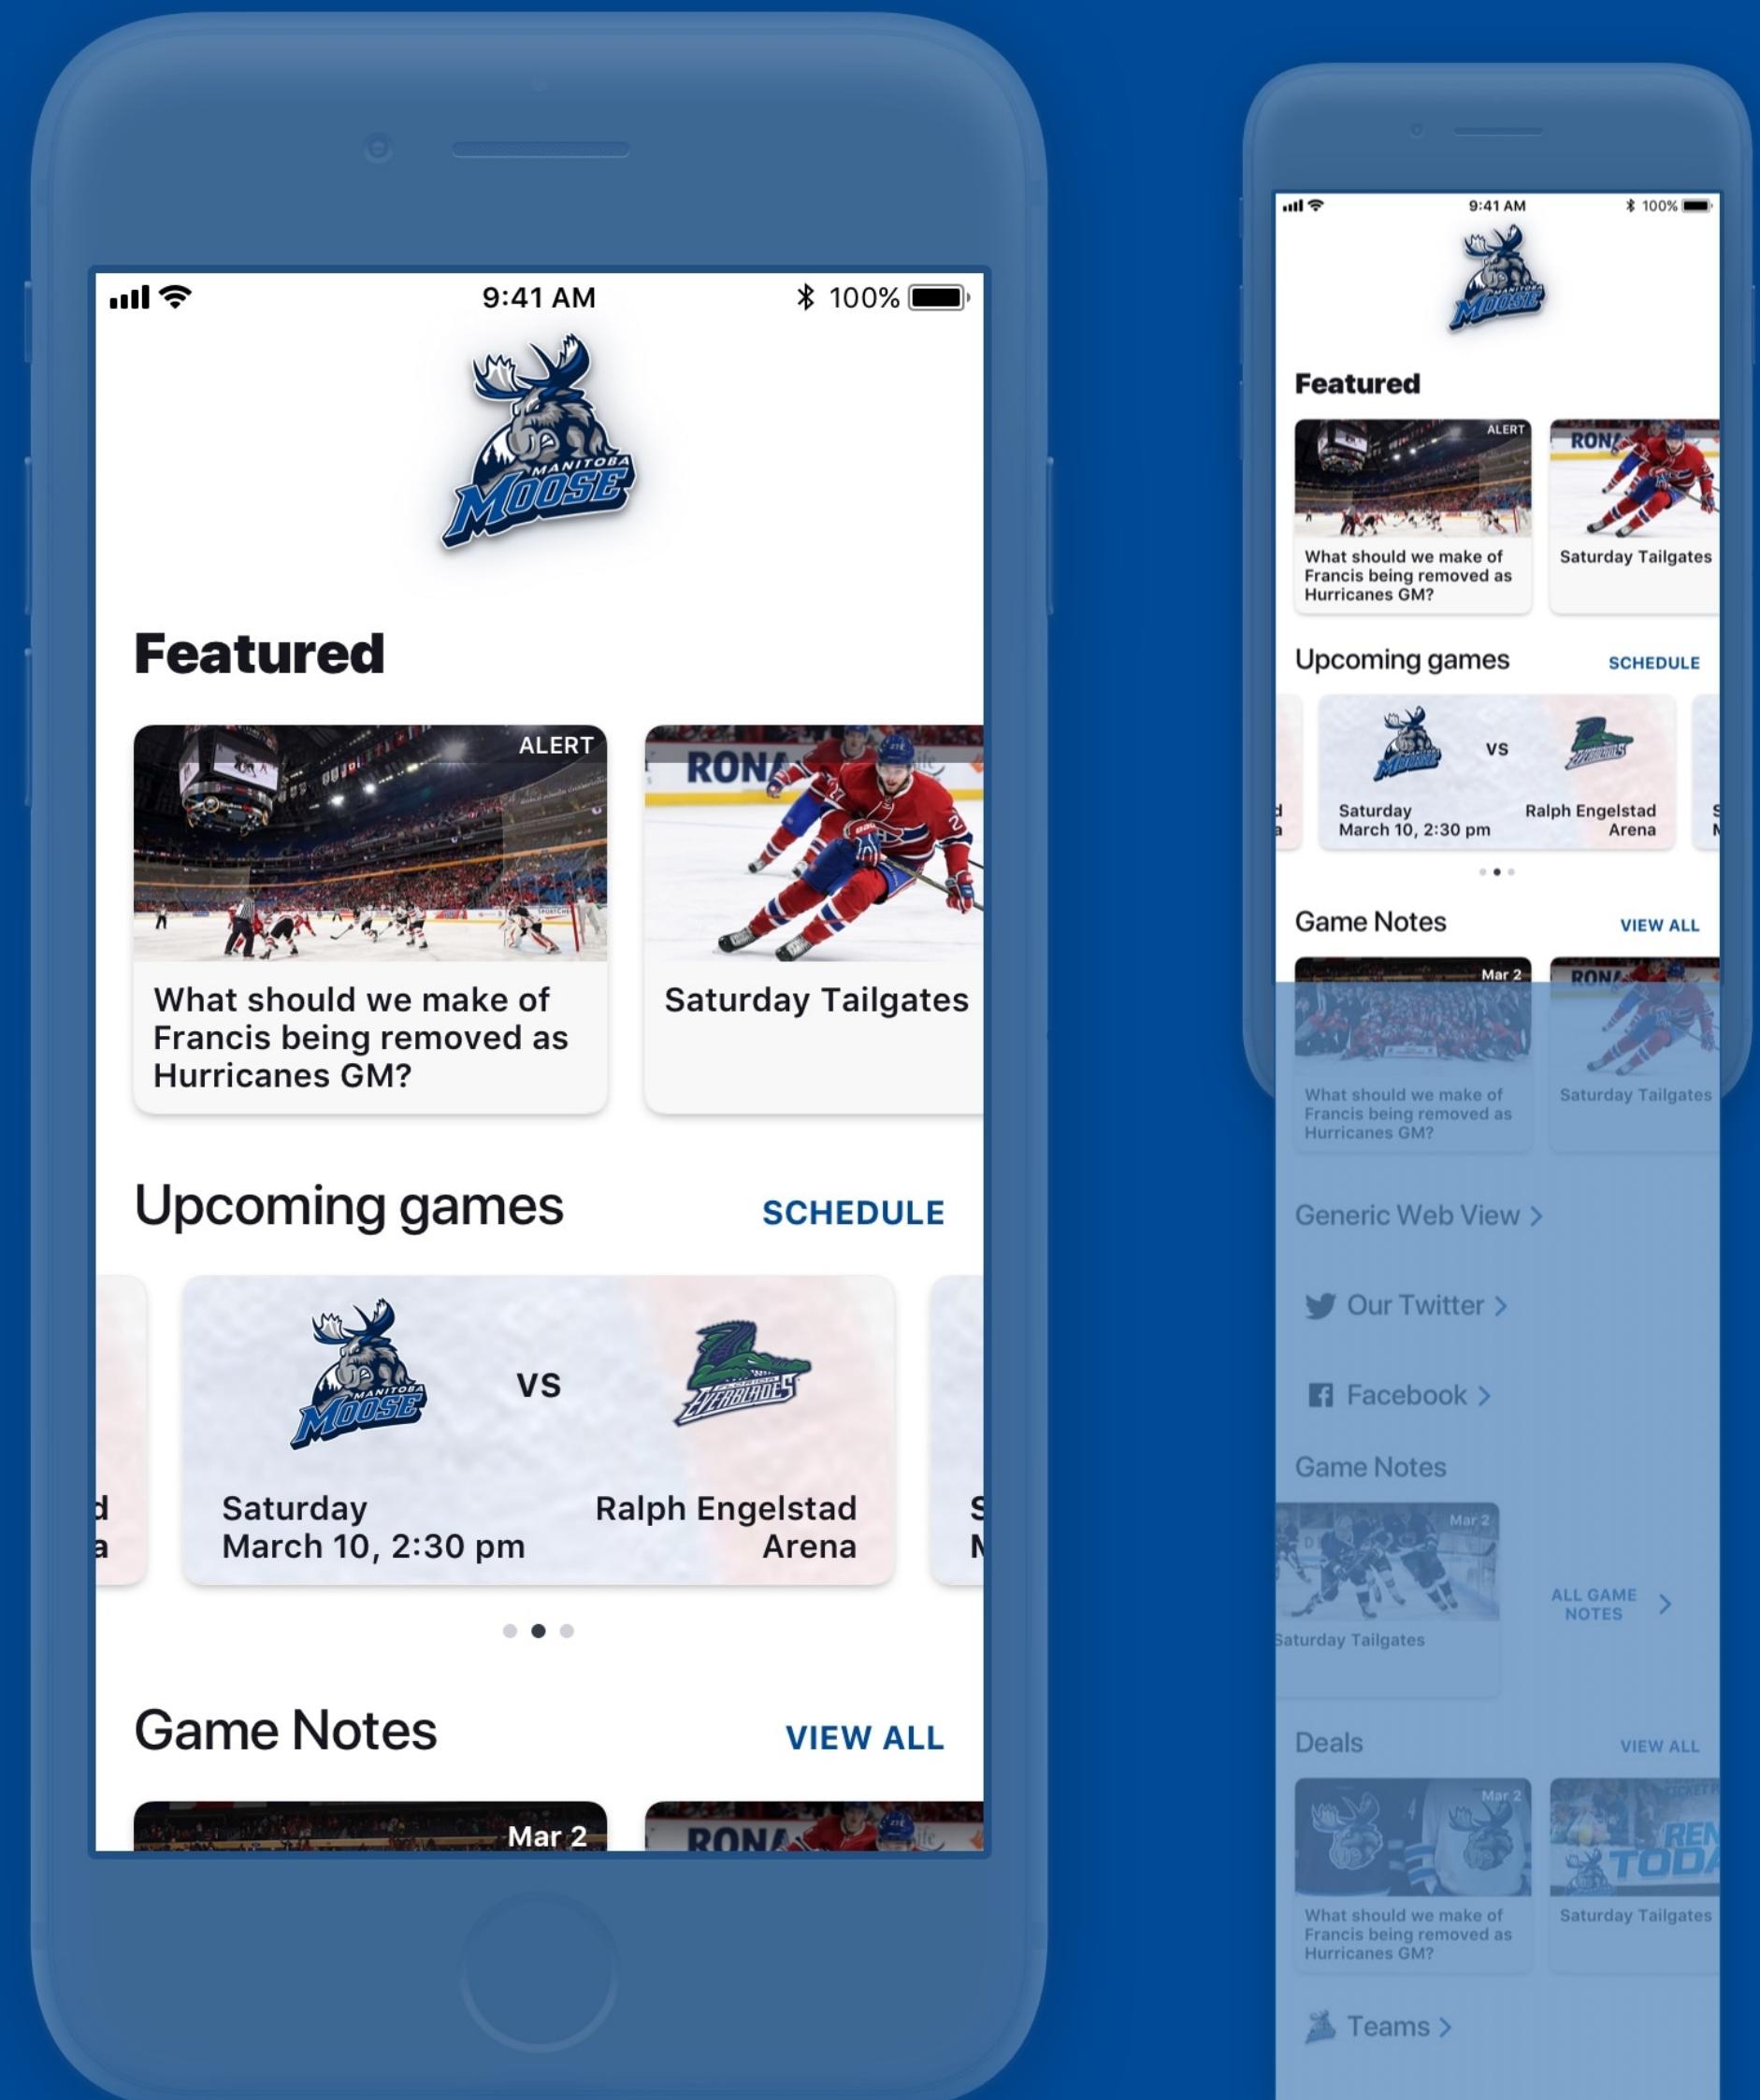

Fannex provides interactive entertainment to attending spectators and fans of sporting events.

Main screen

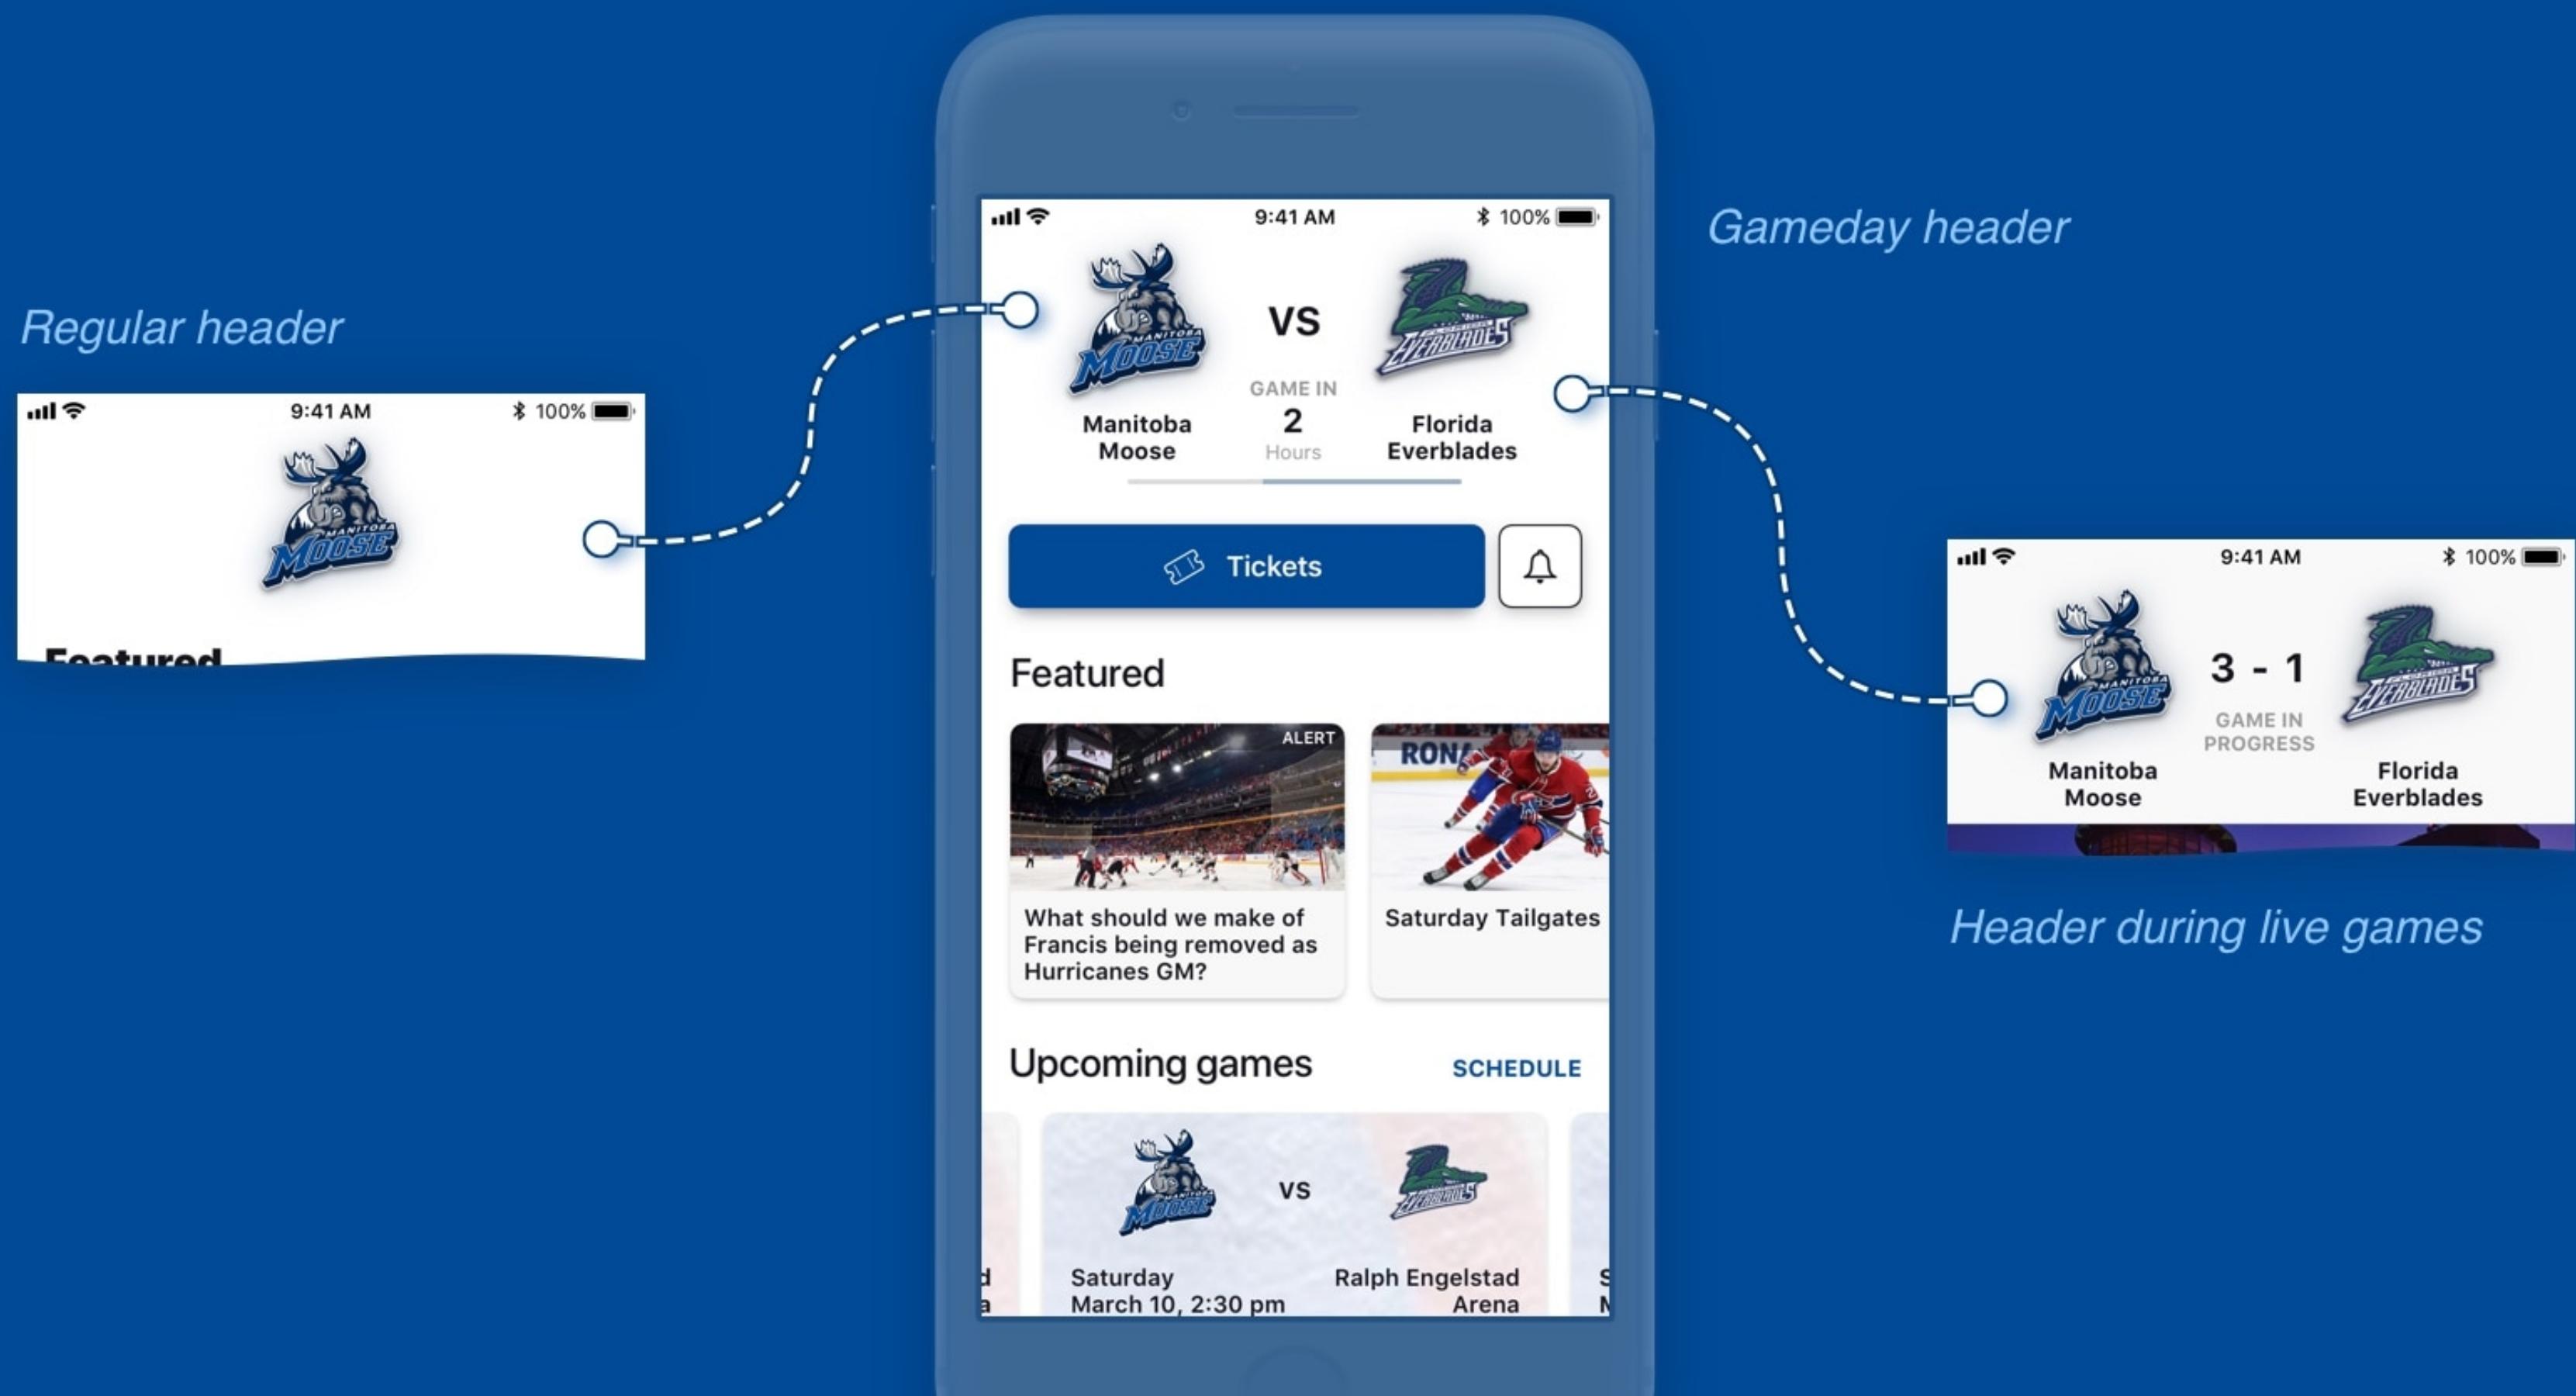

After testing a few navigation patterns, we settled on a feed-like screen as it was the most fitting for the type of content the app provided.

Articles, notes and other content, that previously was under layers of additional navigation, is now pulled to the main screen to appears as cards for the most recent ones.

Header section

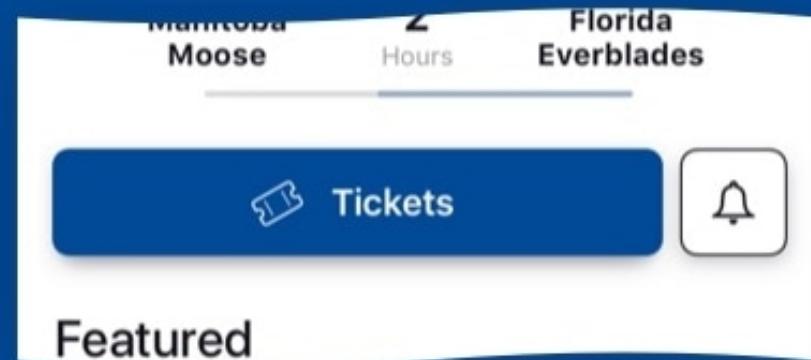

On the main screen a dynamic header section was introduced. Depending on whether there is a game announced, the user is at the venue or checked-in, header adjusts its content to better suit the context.

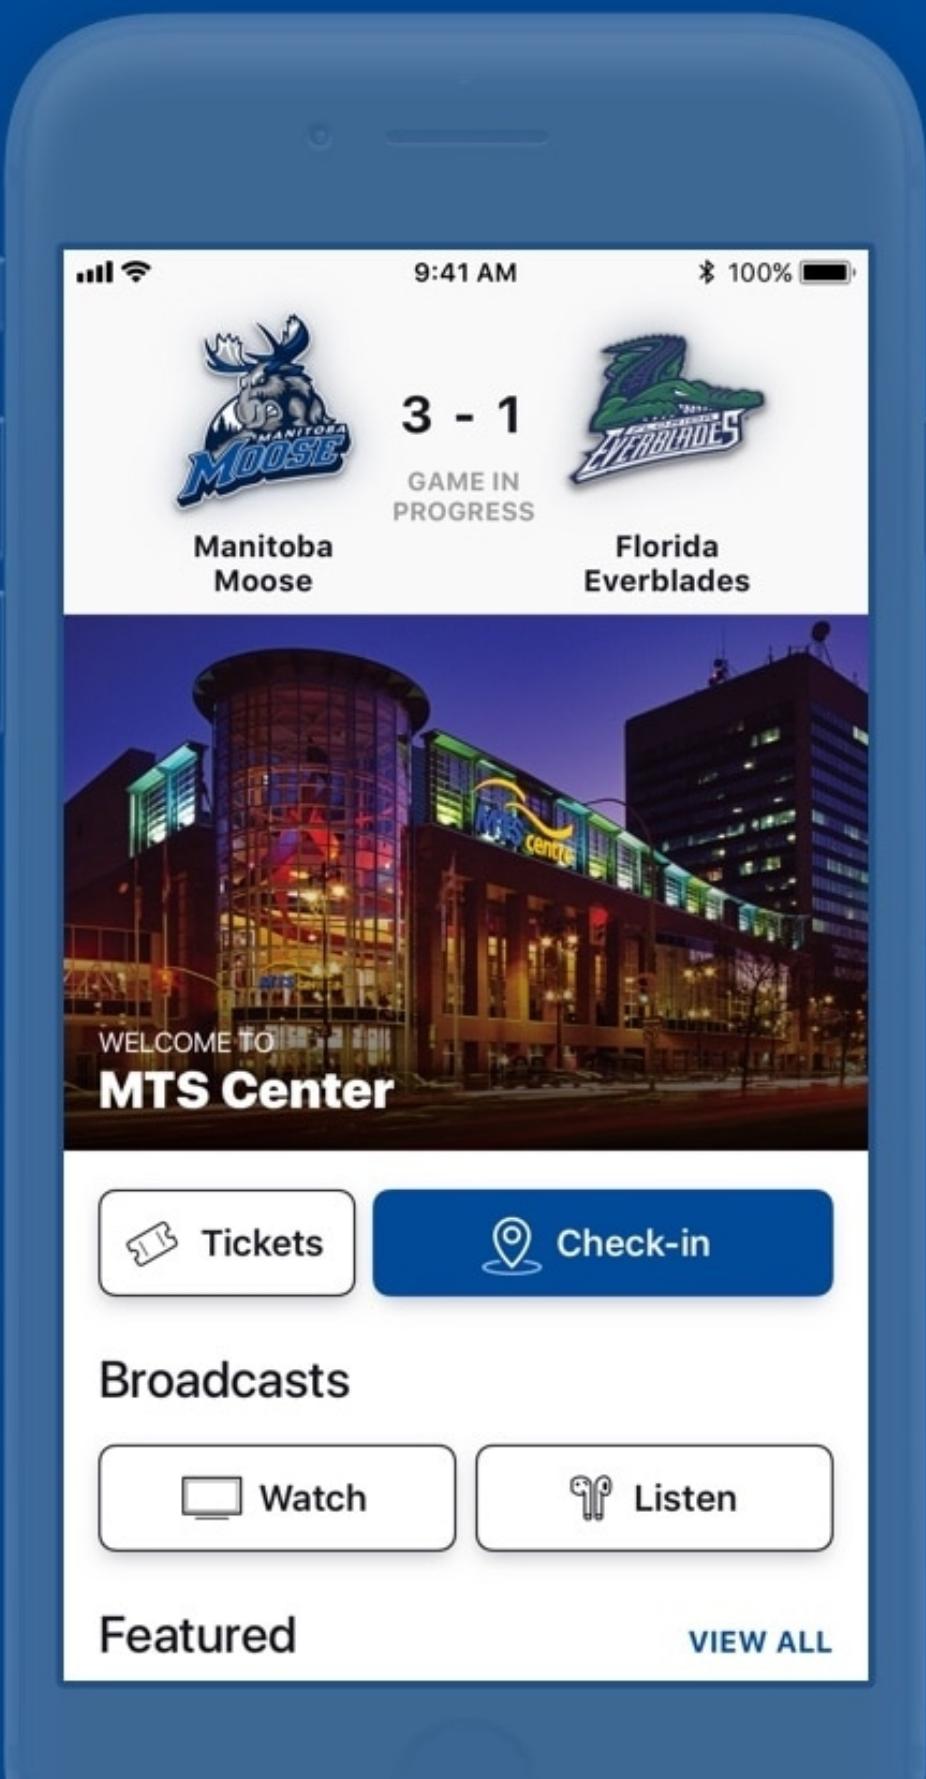

Gameday section

Along with the header, gameday section changes its content to suit the situation.

Gameday section during the day of the game

Gameday section when at the venue during live games

Gameday section when checked in during live game

Customization

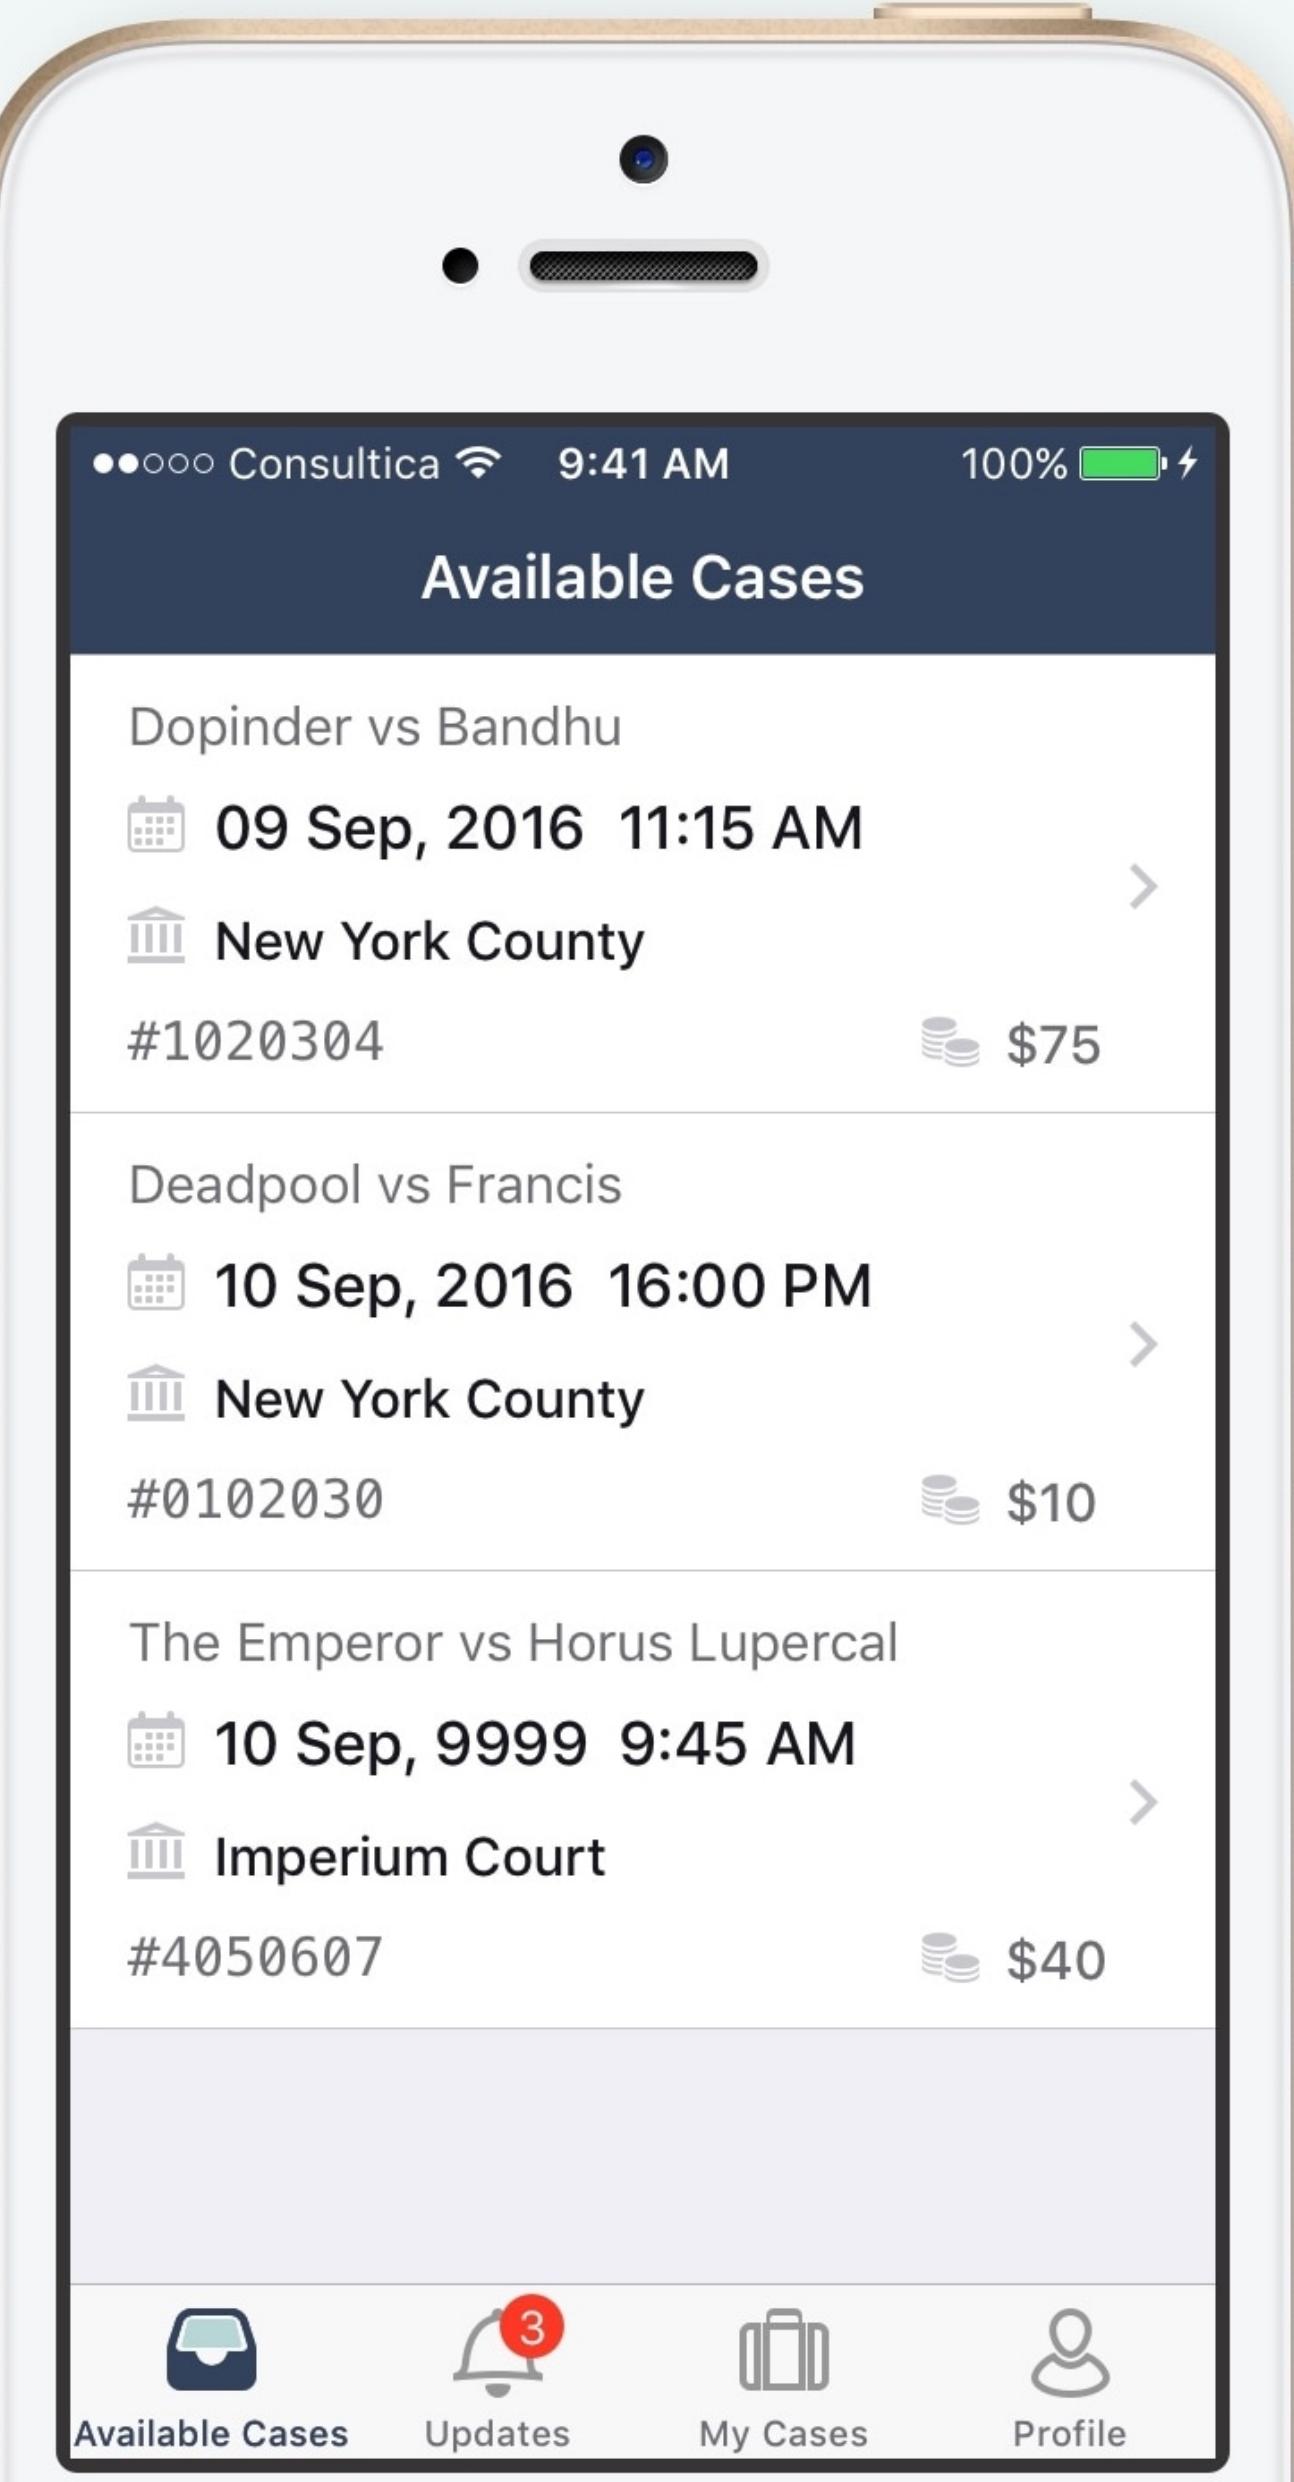

The design was made to handle some limited customization like colours, fonts, icons to allow sports teams to better represent their brand.

Attorneys on Demand

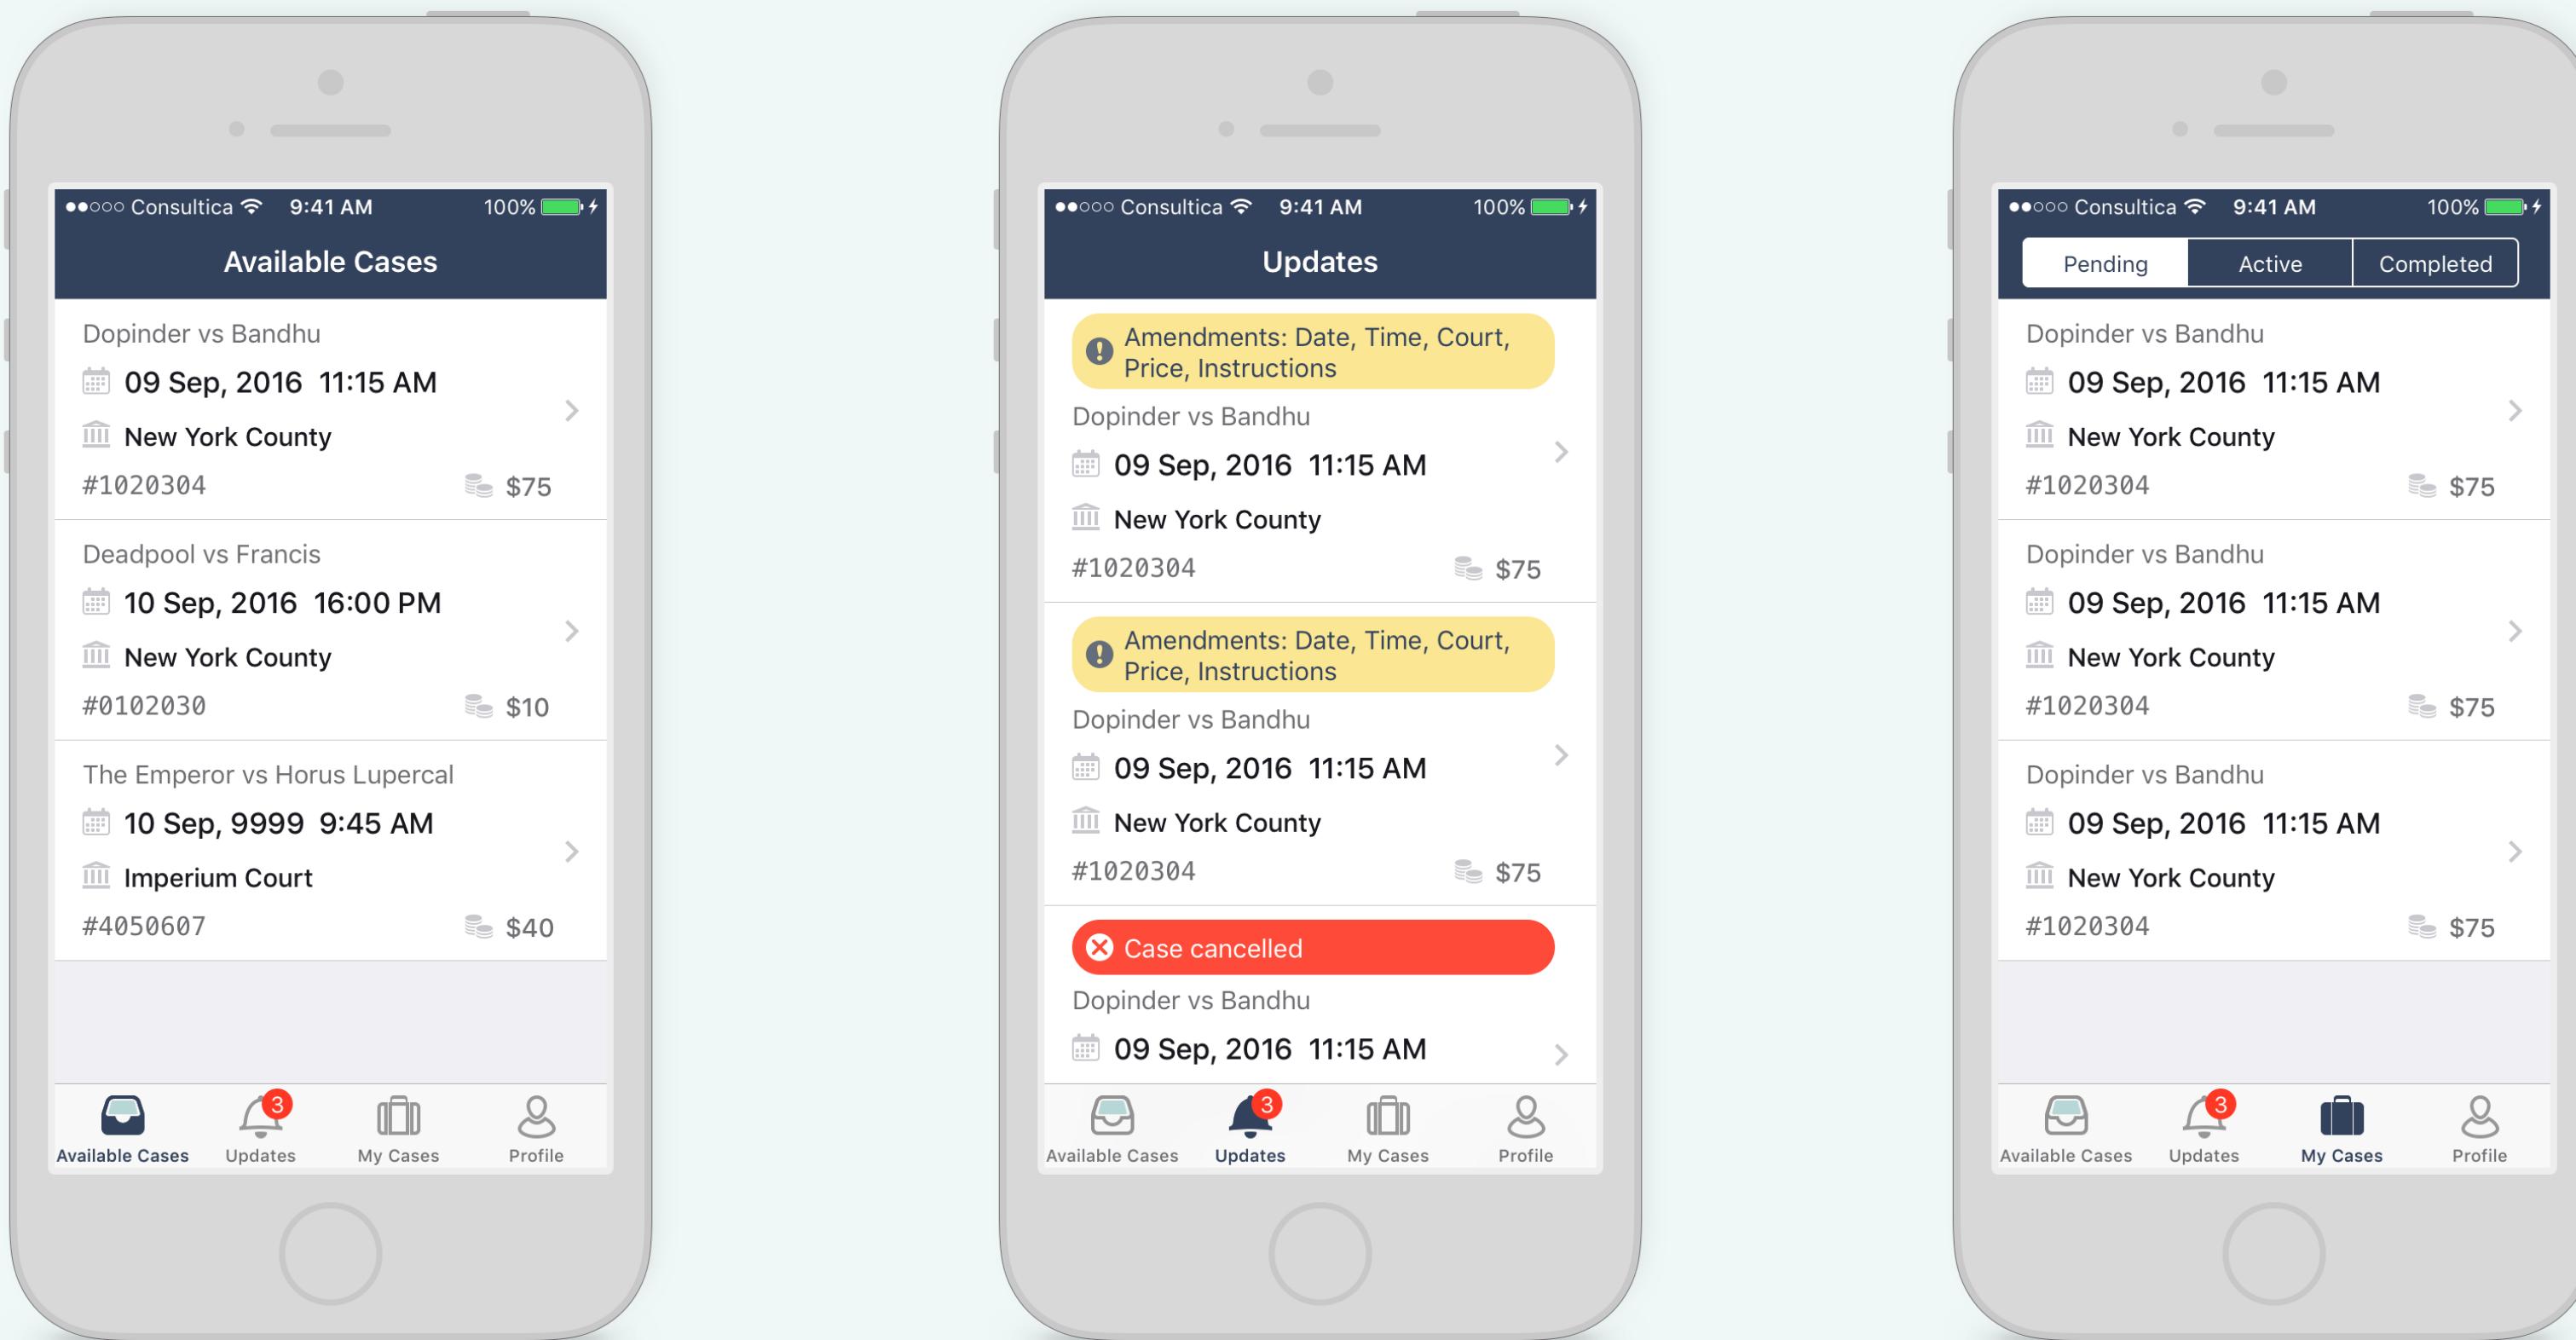

Project scope was to design a native app that would bring the main features of the web-based service to mobile.

I was responsible for all design aspects of the application.

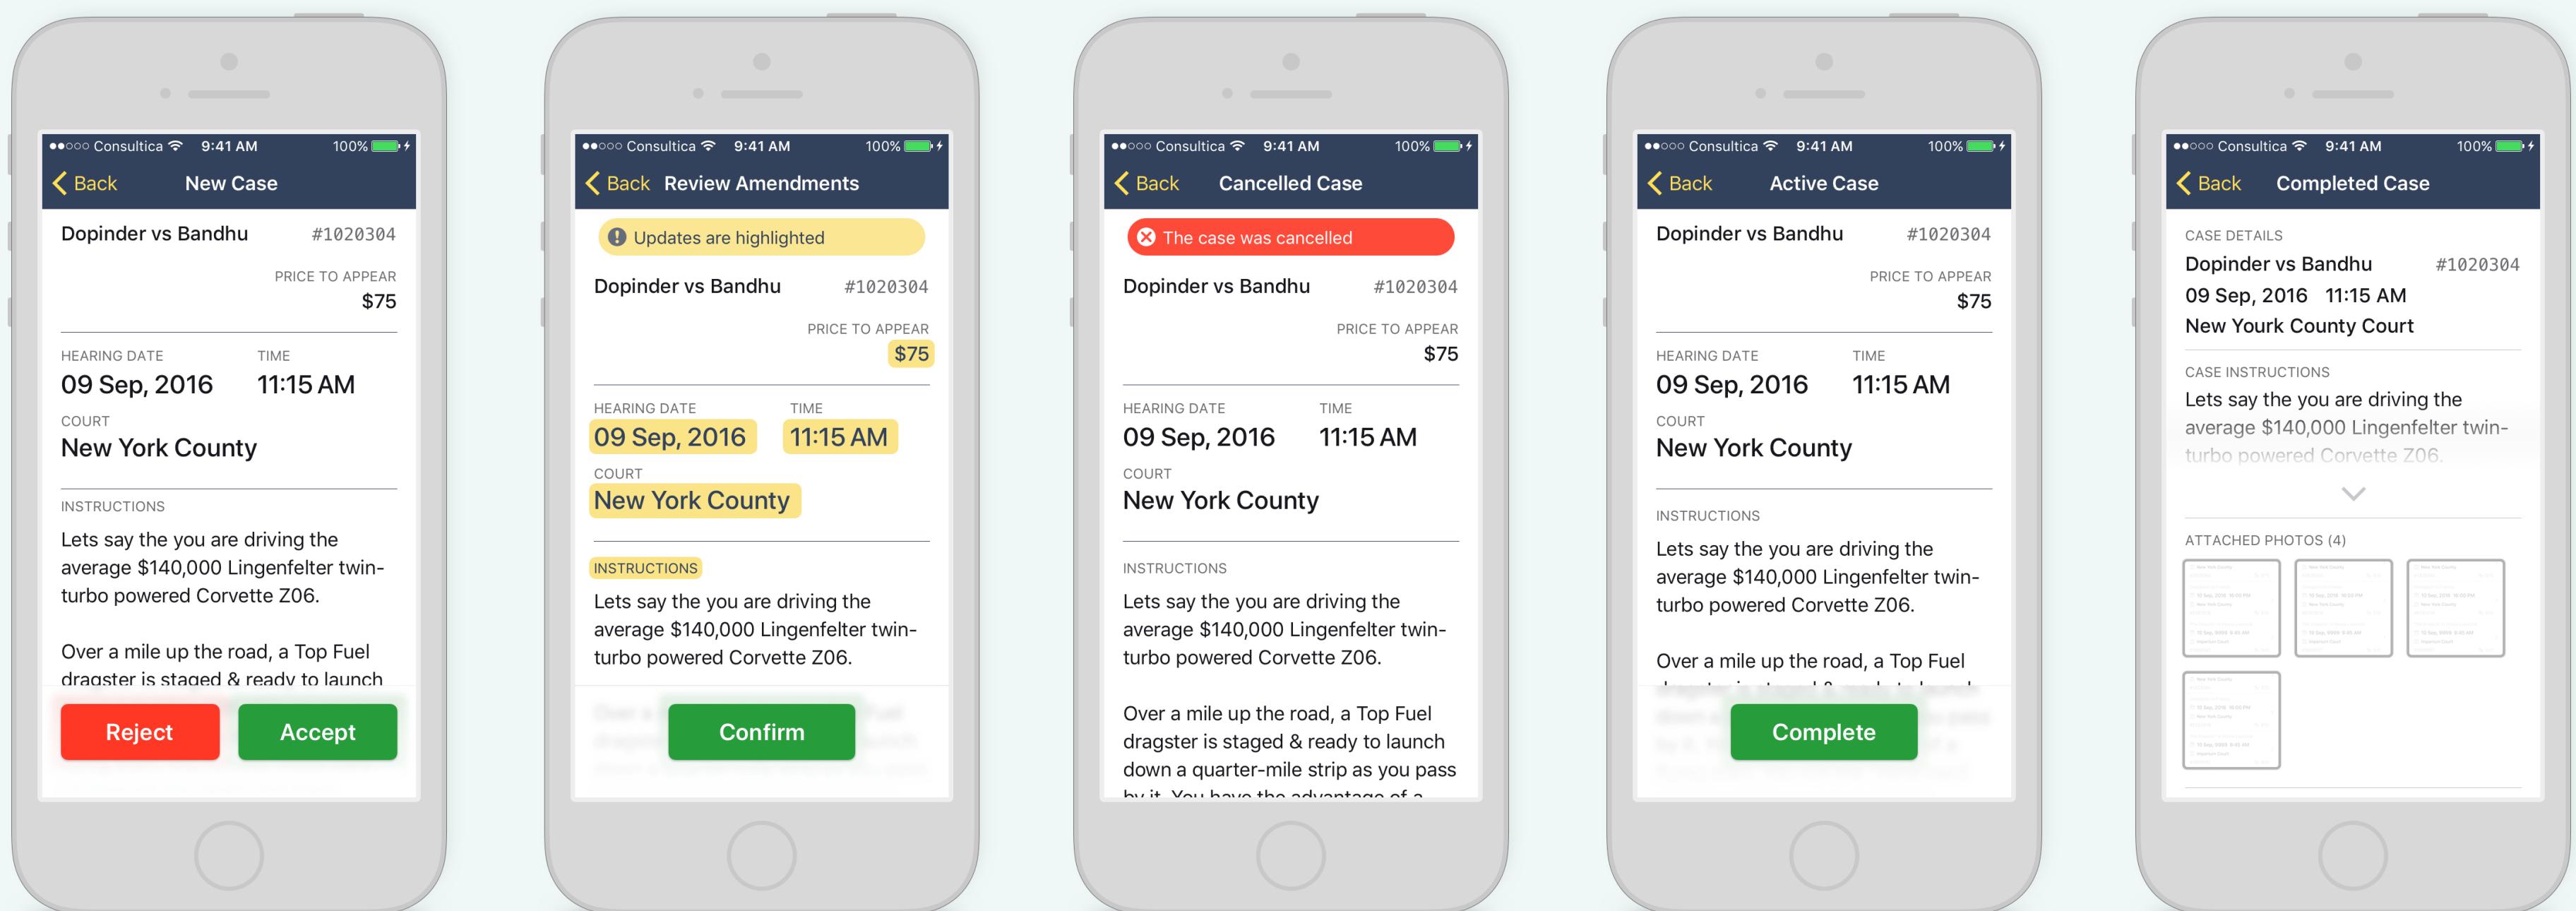

Available, updated & accepted cases

The app focuses on a couple of main use cases where an attorney ignores, accepts or rejects an available case and then receives updates on the cases he has accepted. These use cases lend themselves nicely to a tabbed navigation pattern.

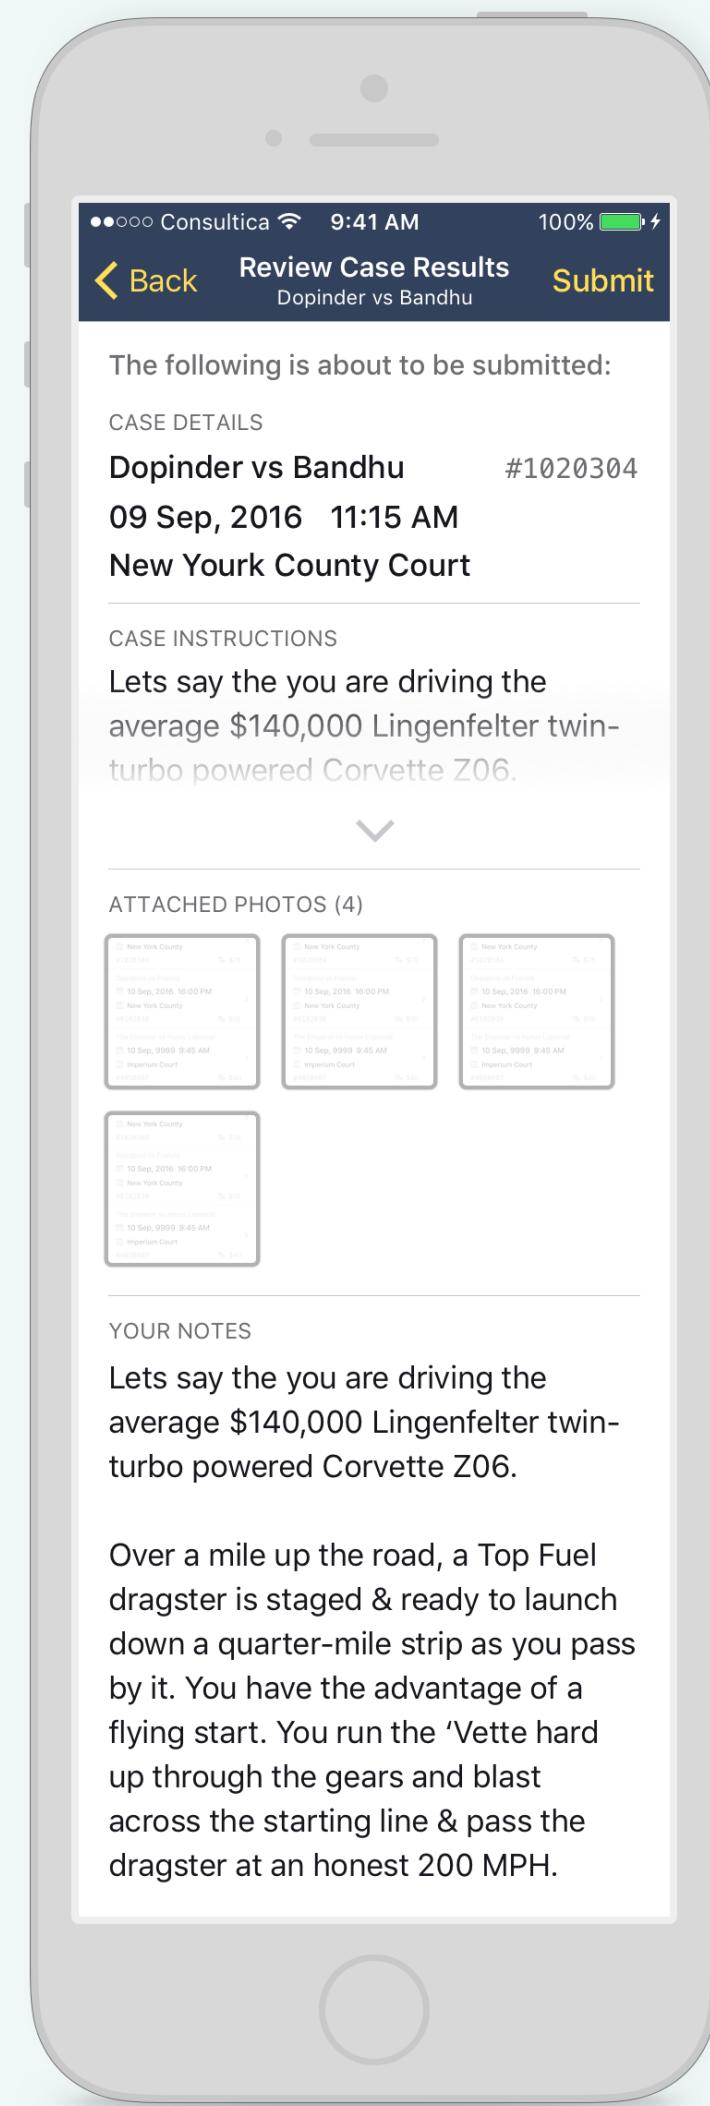

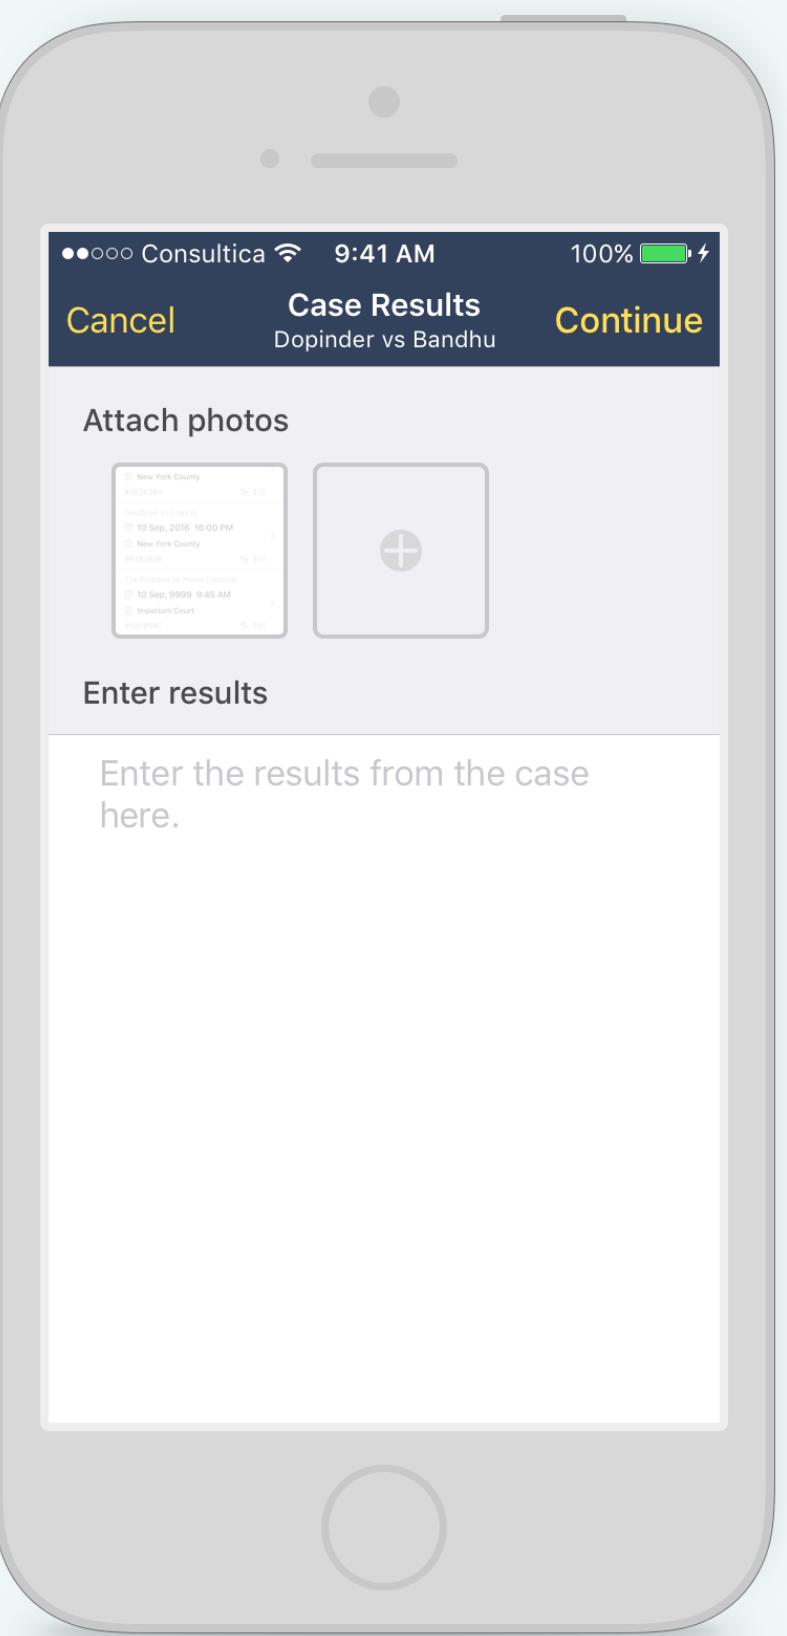

Working on cases

Case details shows additional information about a case. Main actions were placed at the bottom for easier reachability. Updates are highlighted until the attorney acknowledges the changes.

Completing a case

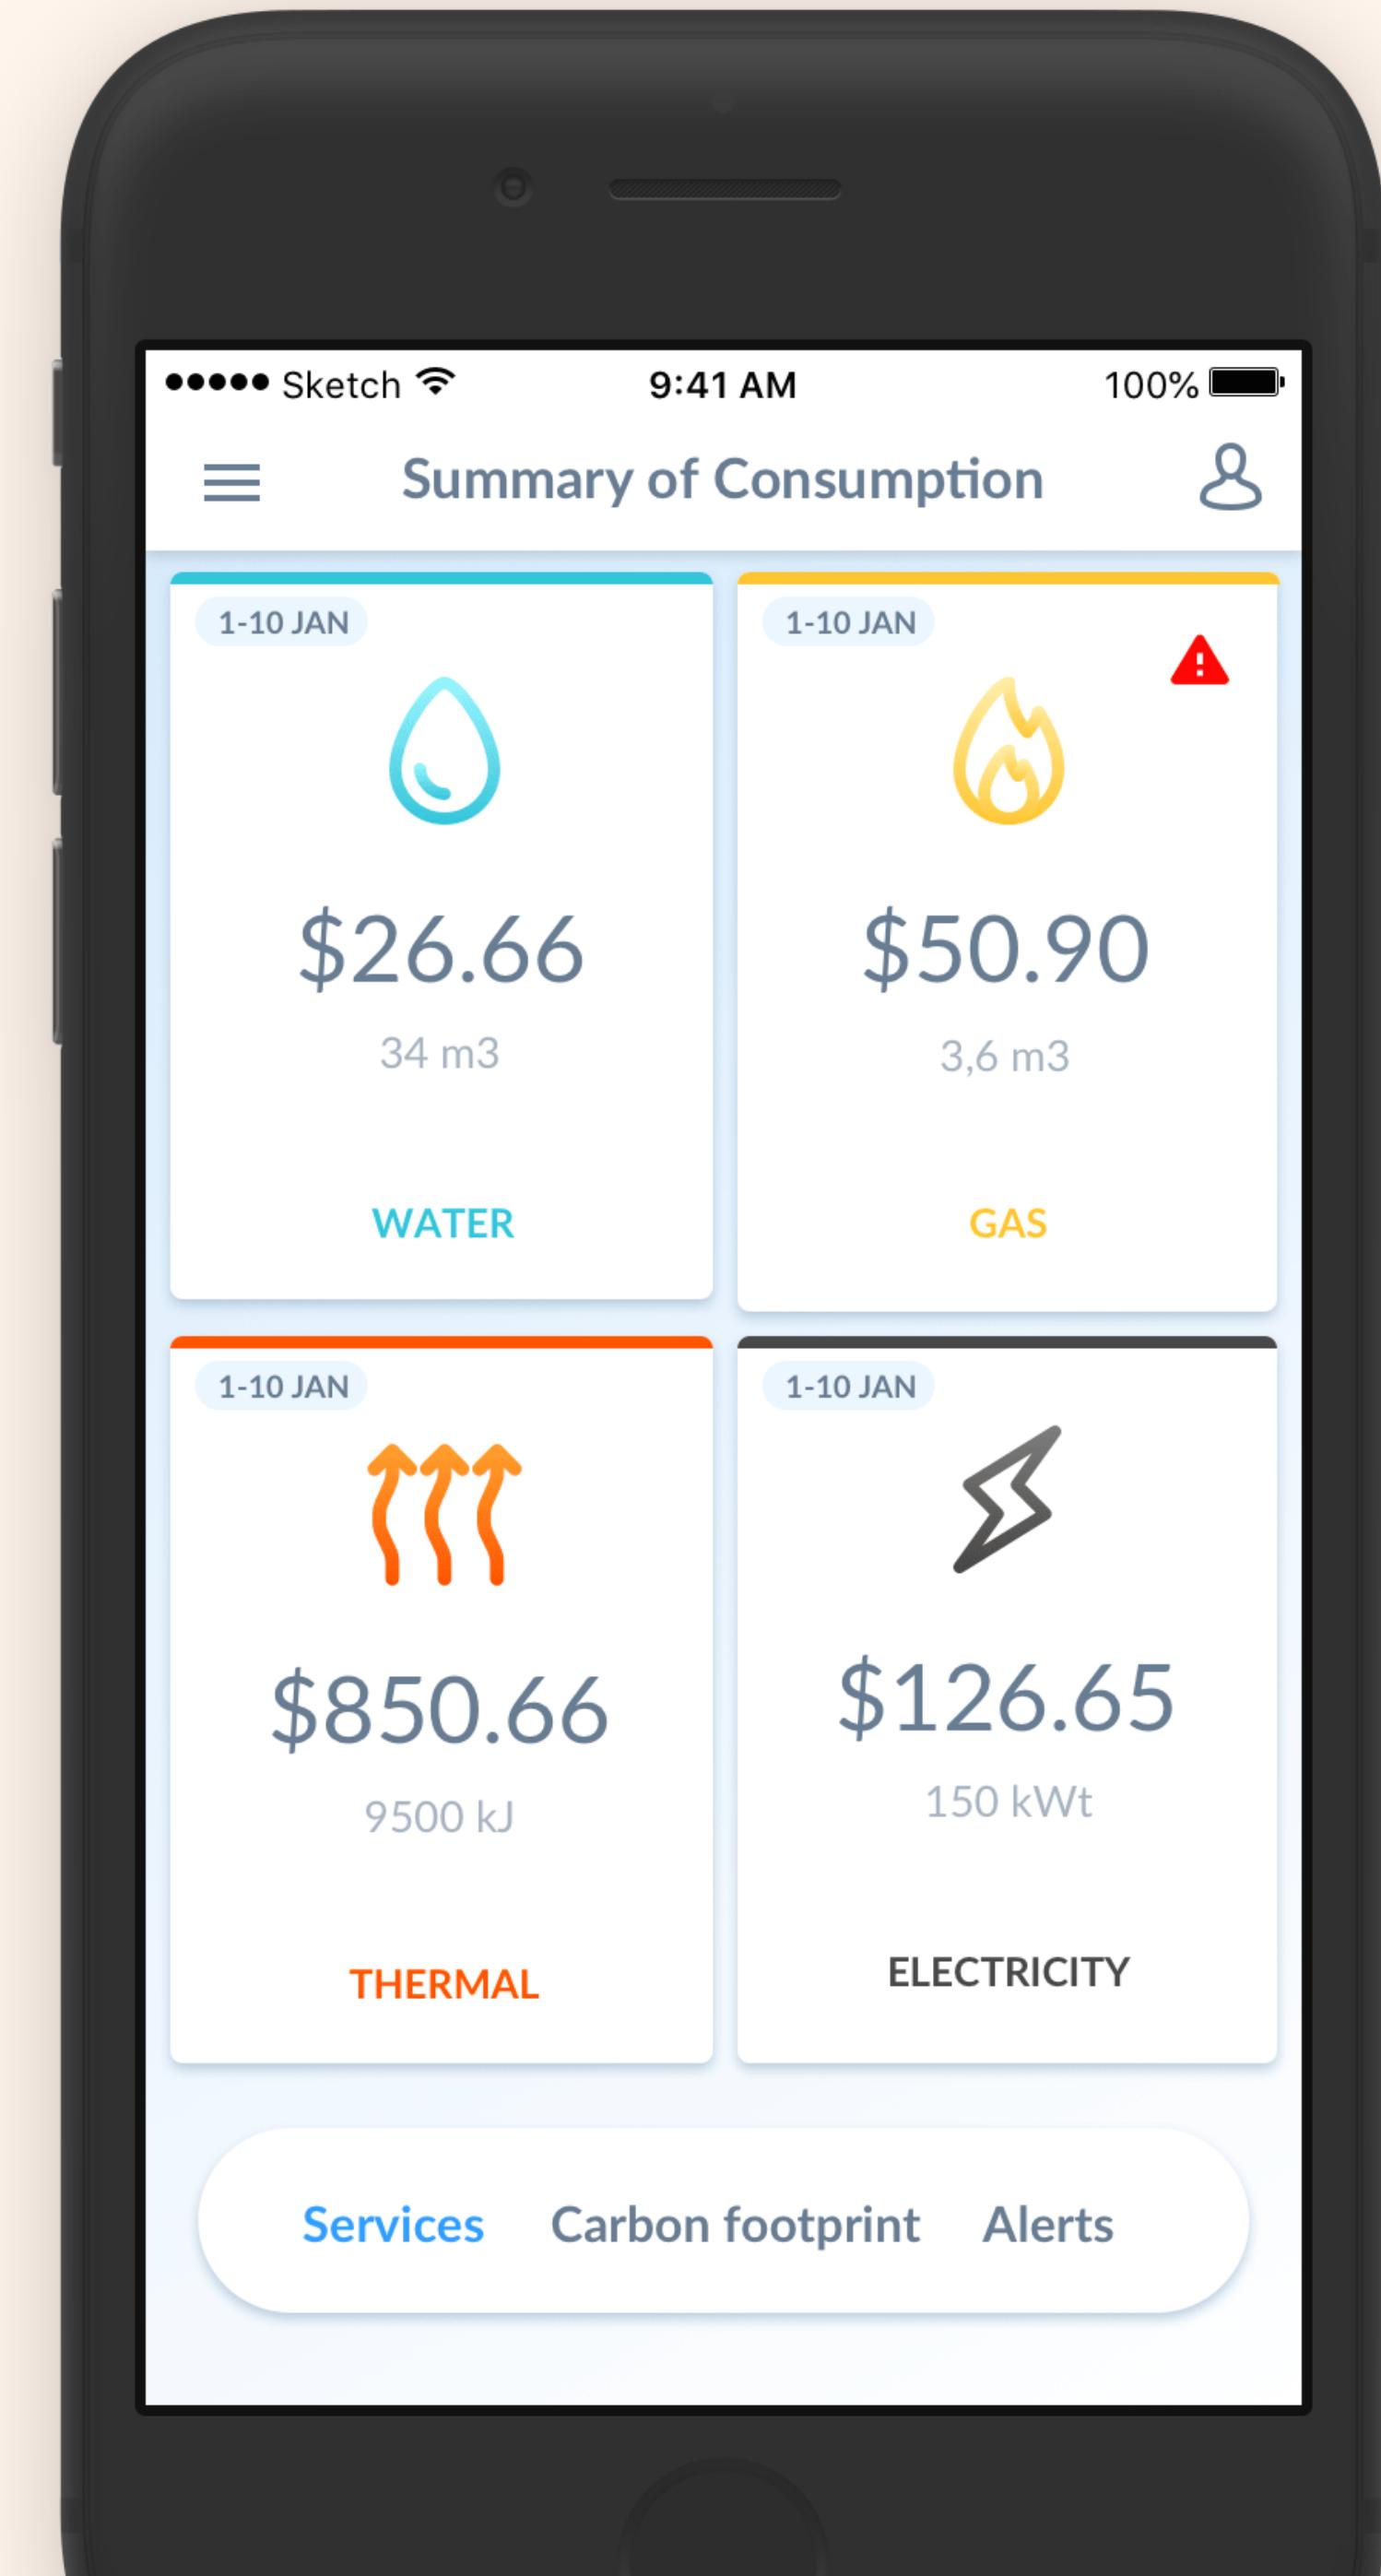

Attorneys attach notes and photos of the documents when completing a case. Because user input is invaluable, the app saves everything the attorney adds to a case he's working on.

Mobile app for Sub-metering Provider

The project consisted of designing a client facing mobile application that would show the users their metering data, alert them about irregularities and more.

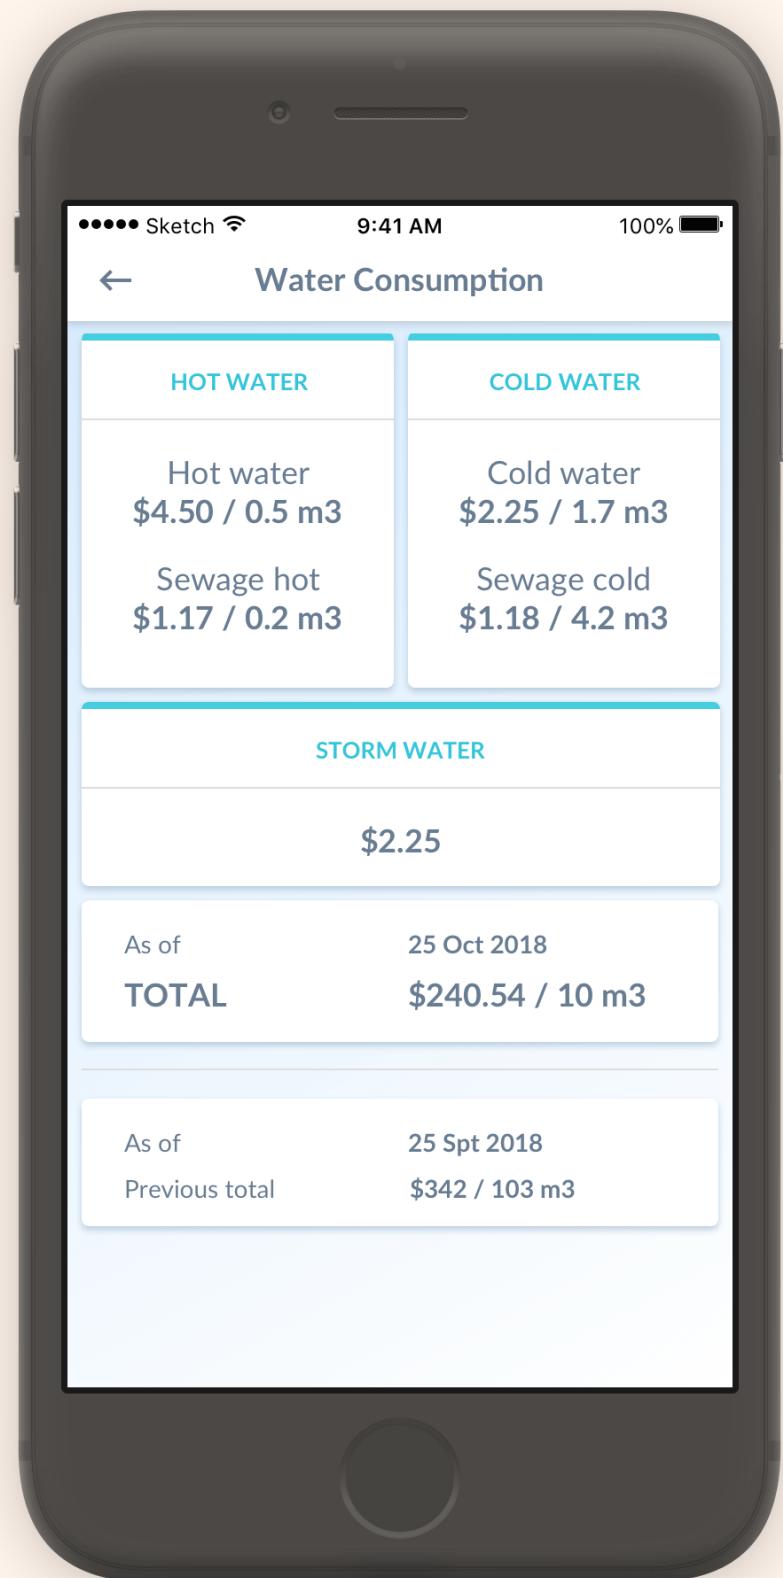

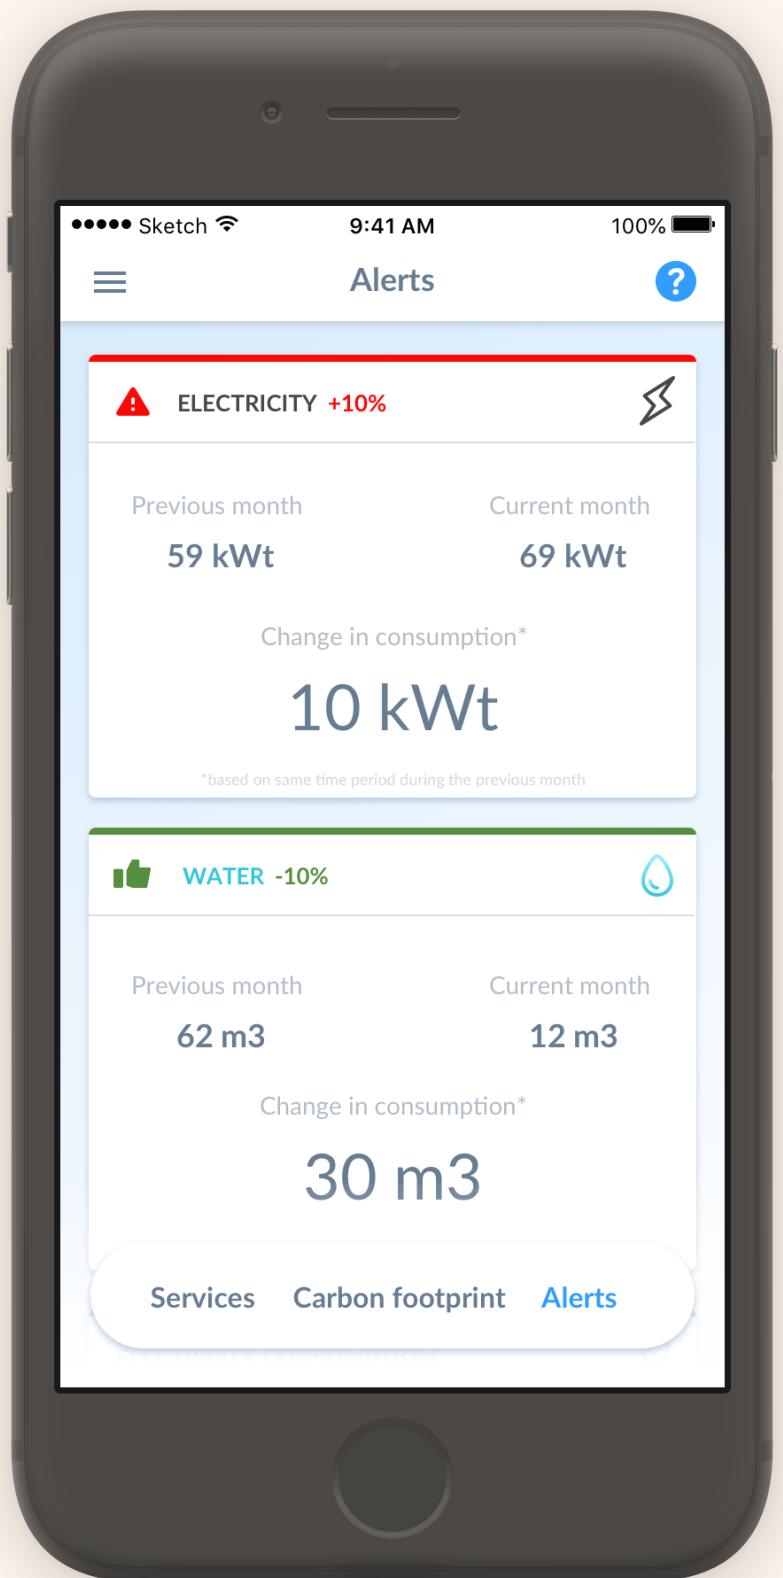

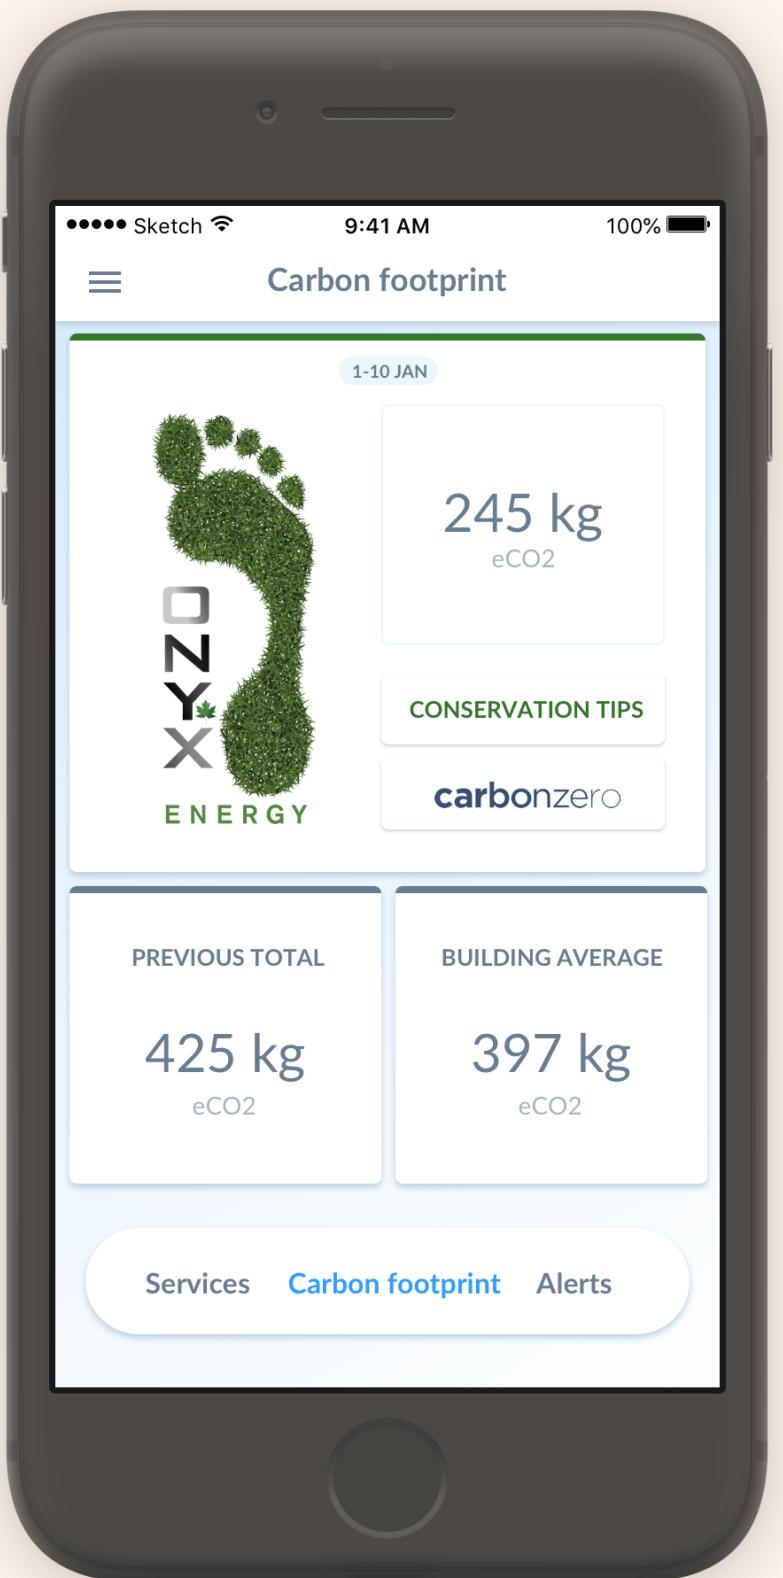

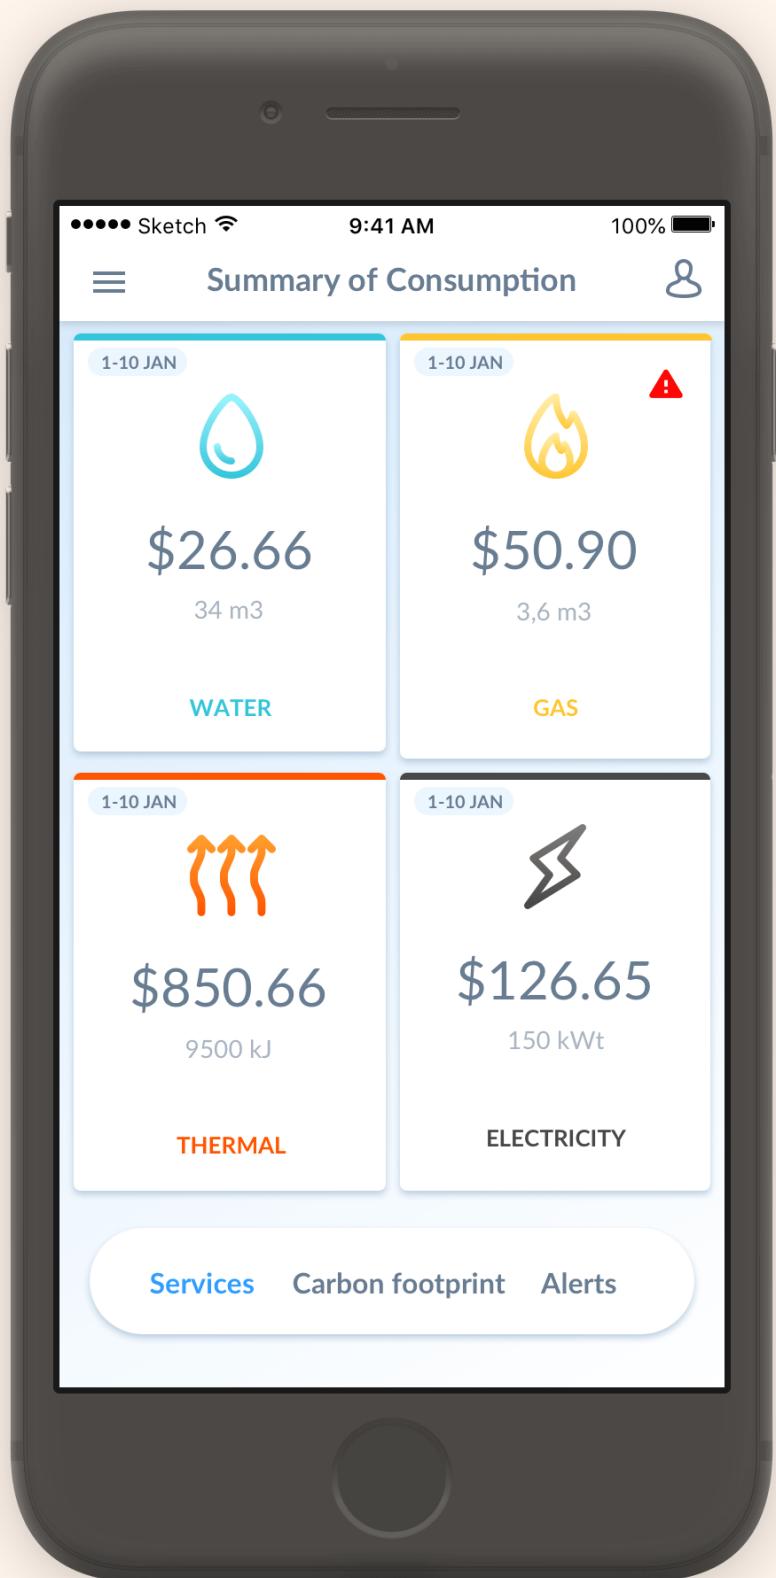

I was in charge of the design of the app.

Main screen

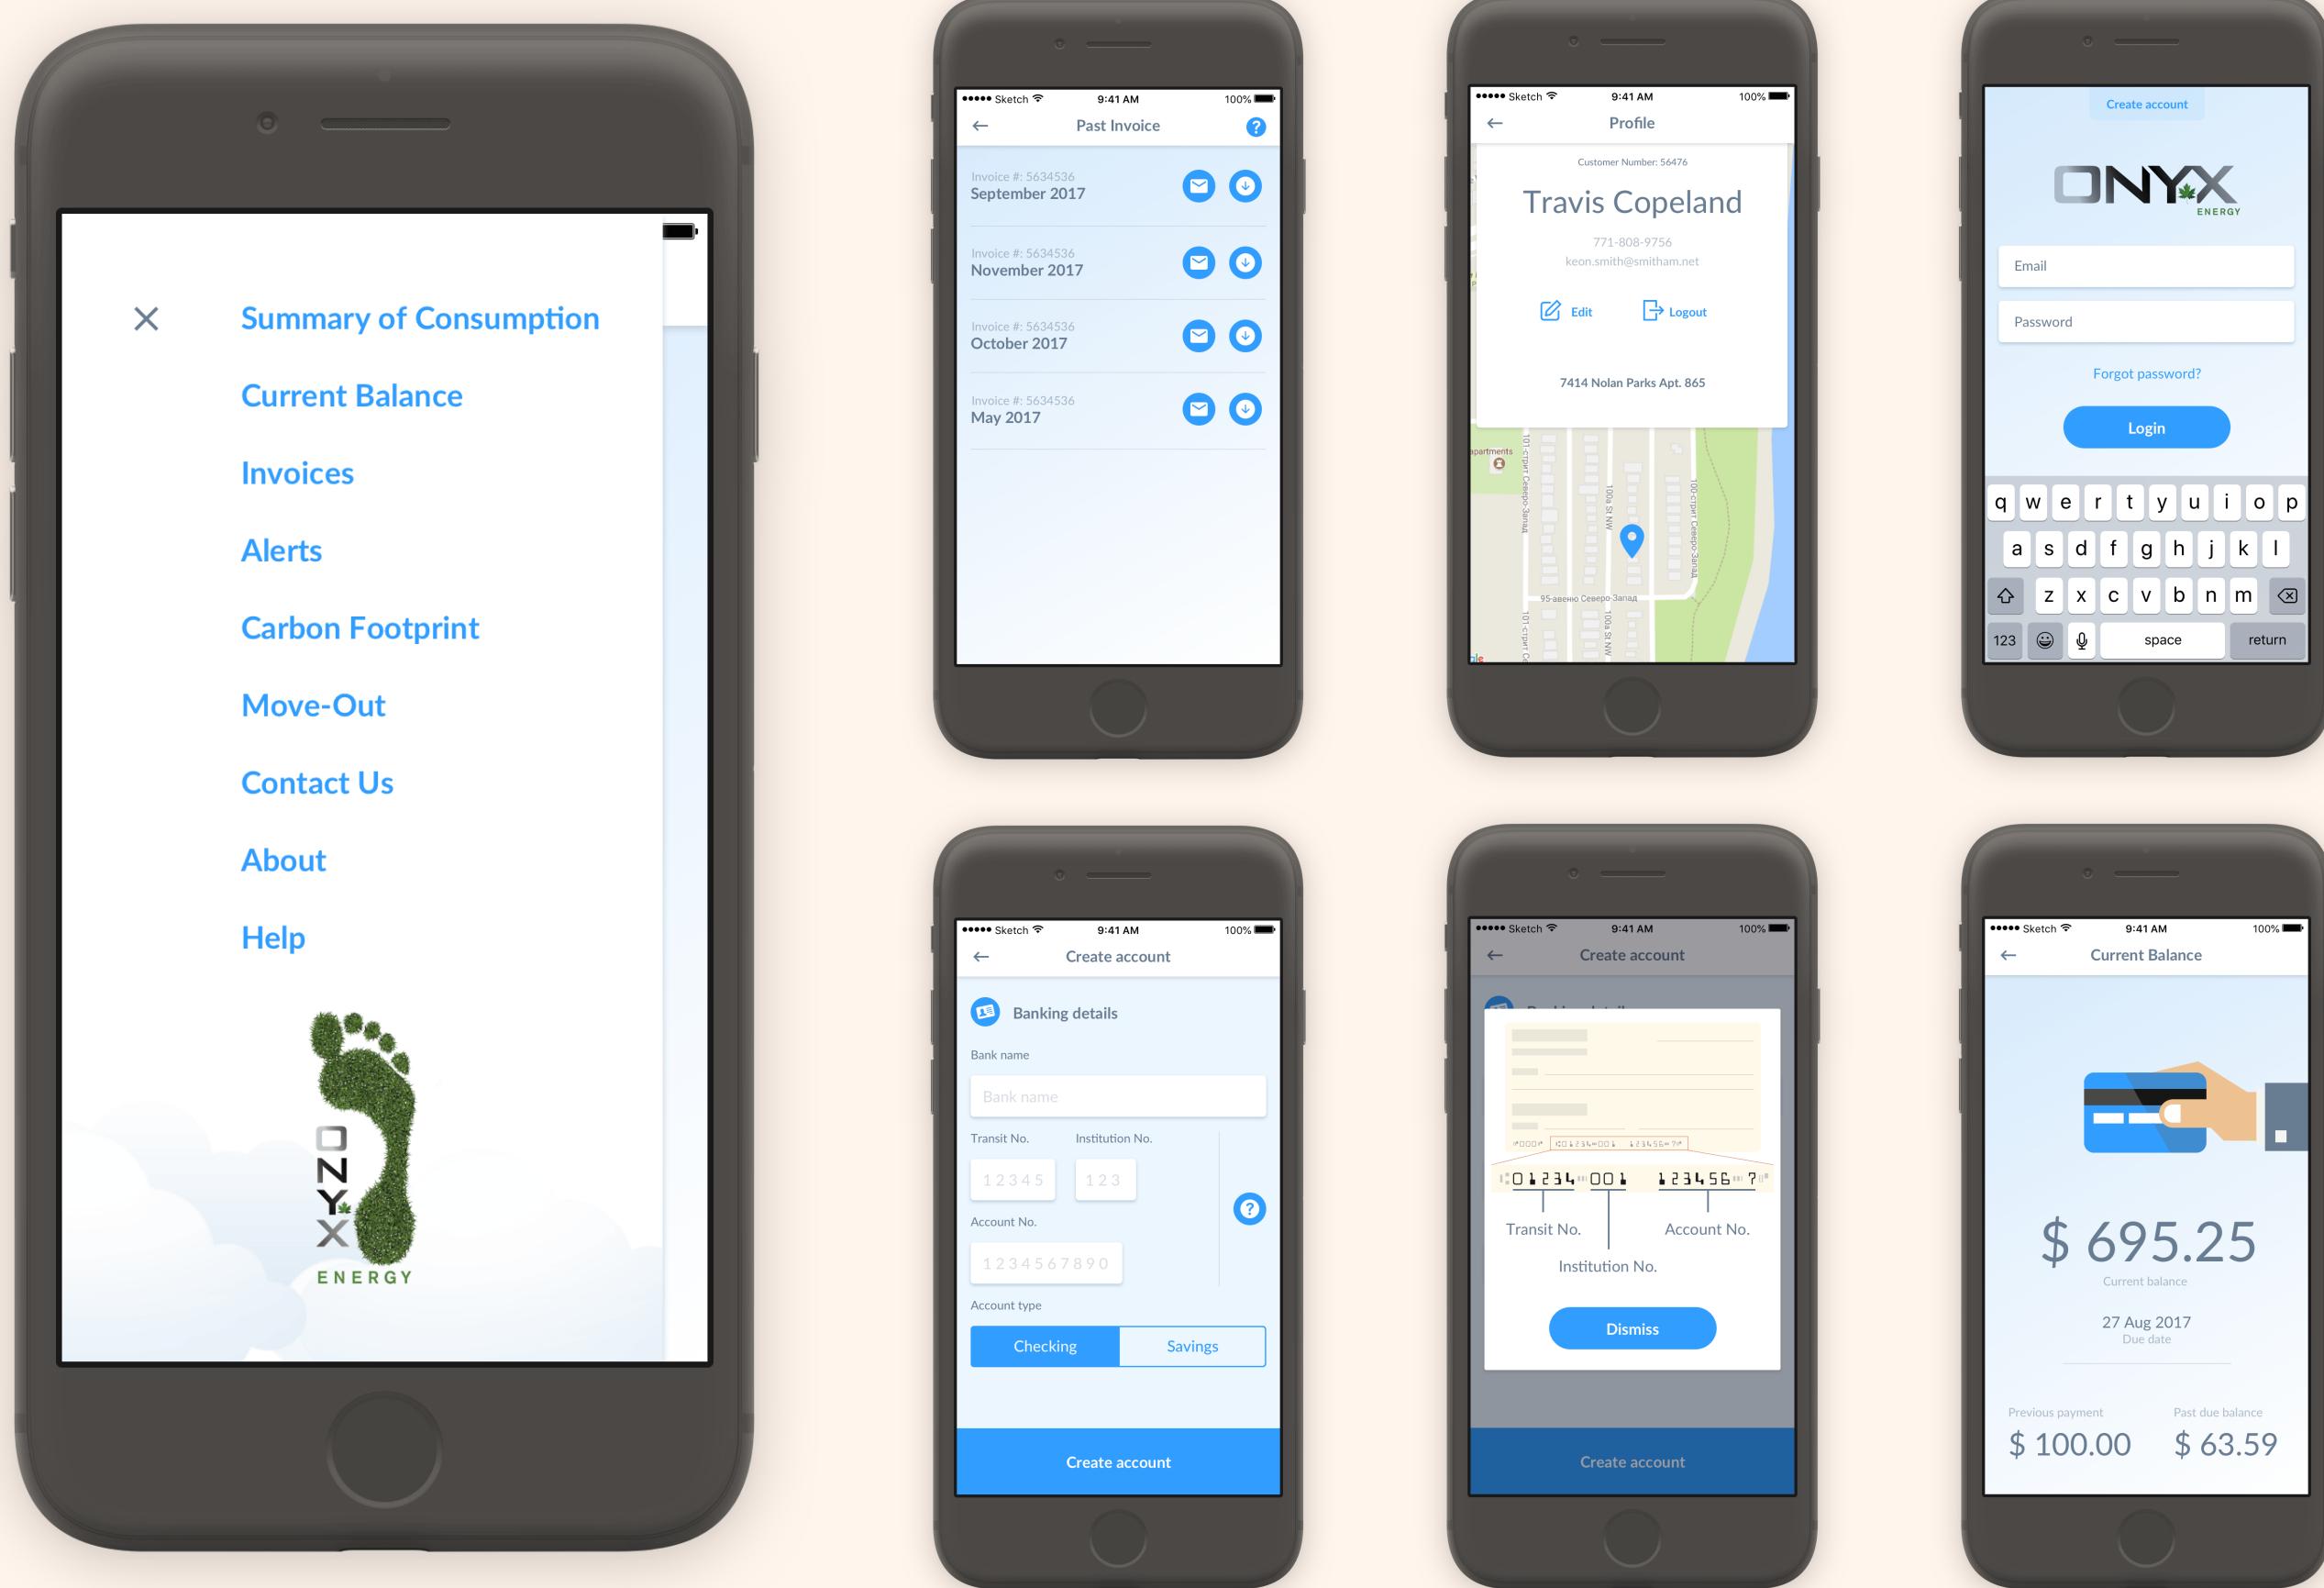

The two features the client wanted to concentrate on was to provide their users with a single place where they could view all their utilities and get alerts about them.

I designed the app around a three tabbed main screen, plus a detailed screen about a particular utility. This provided a quick at-a-glance view of the consumption levels.

Secondary screens

Since we were also able to pull some additional data from their service, I introduced a side menu that would give users an option to view it from within the app.

App Icons

Techapalooza festival

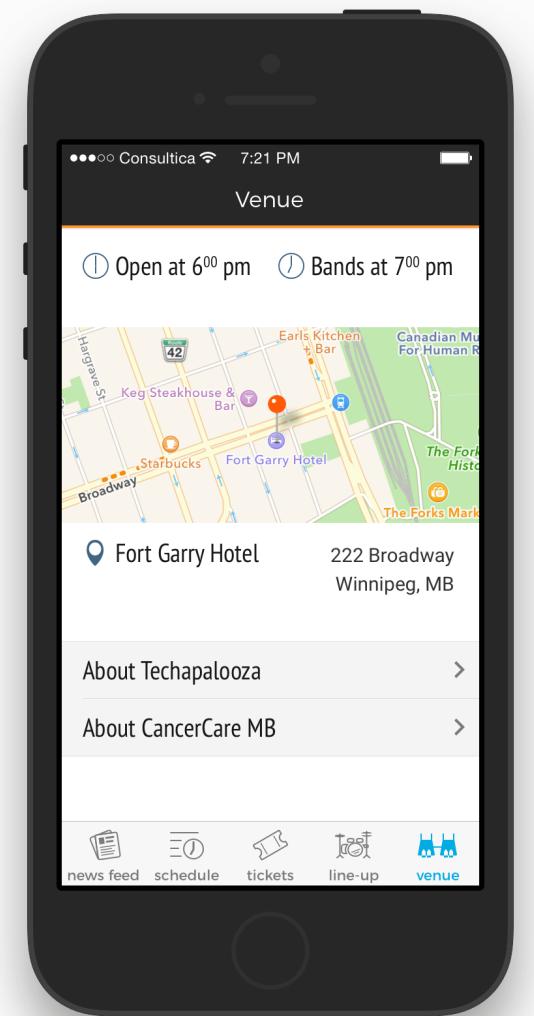

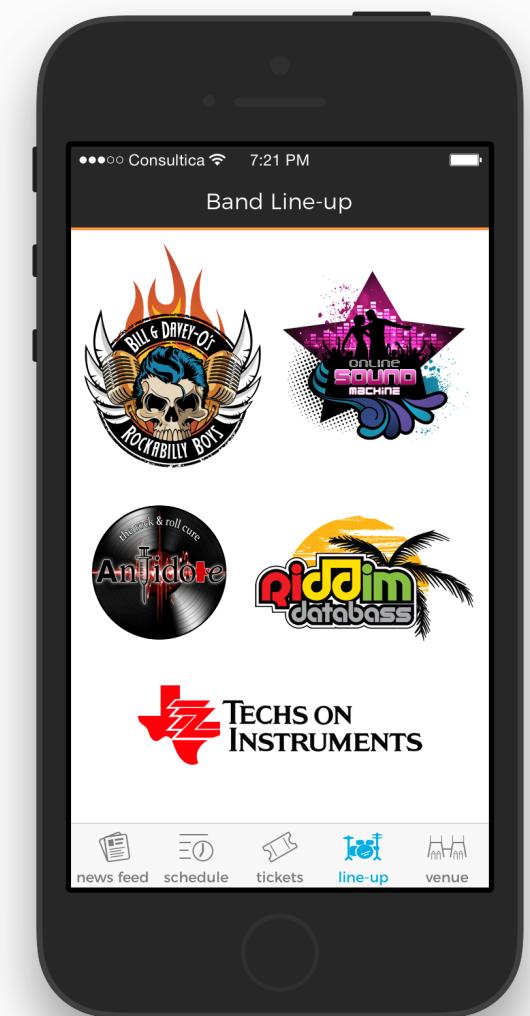

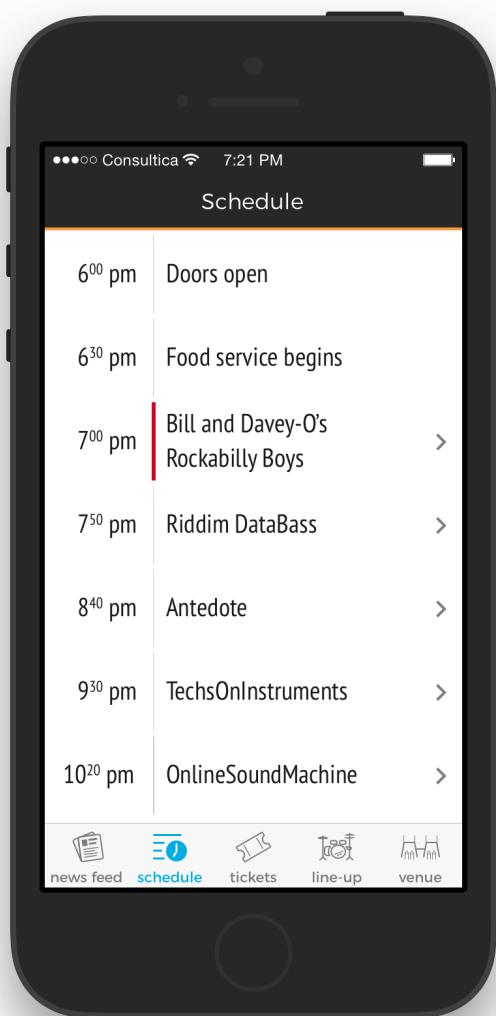

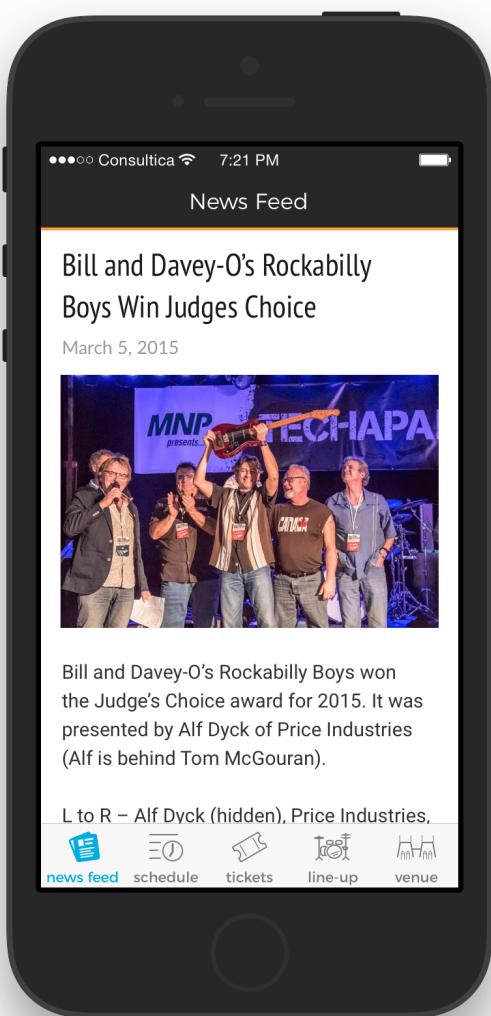

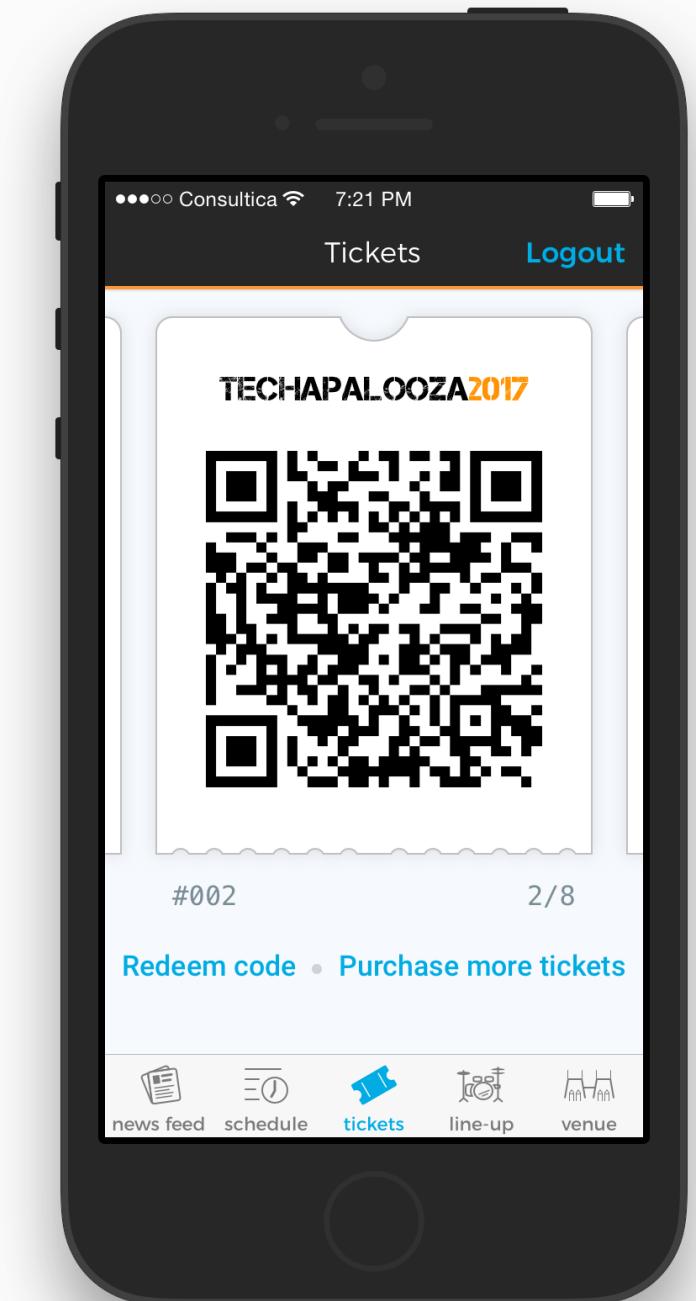

I was tasked with creating the designs of an app, a simple admin panel and a ticket purchase web-page for an annual charity festival.

Mobile app

The organisers wanted the to be a single place for news about the event, its schedule, tickets purchase and storage, information about performing bands and about the venue.

With this in mind the app was designed around tabbed navigation.

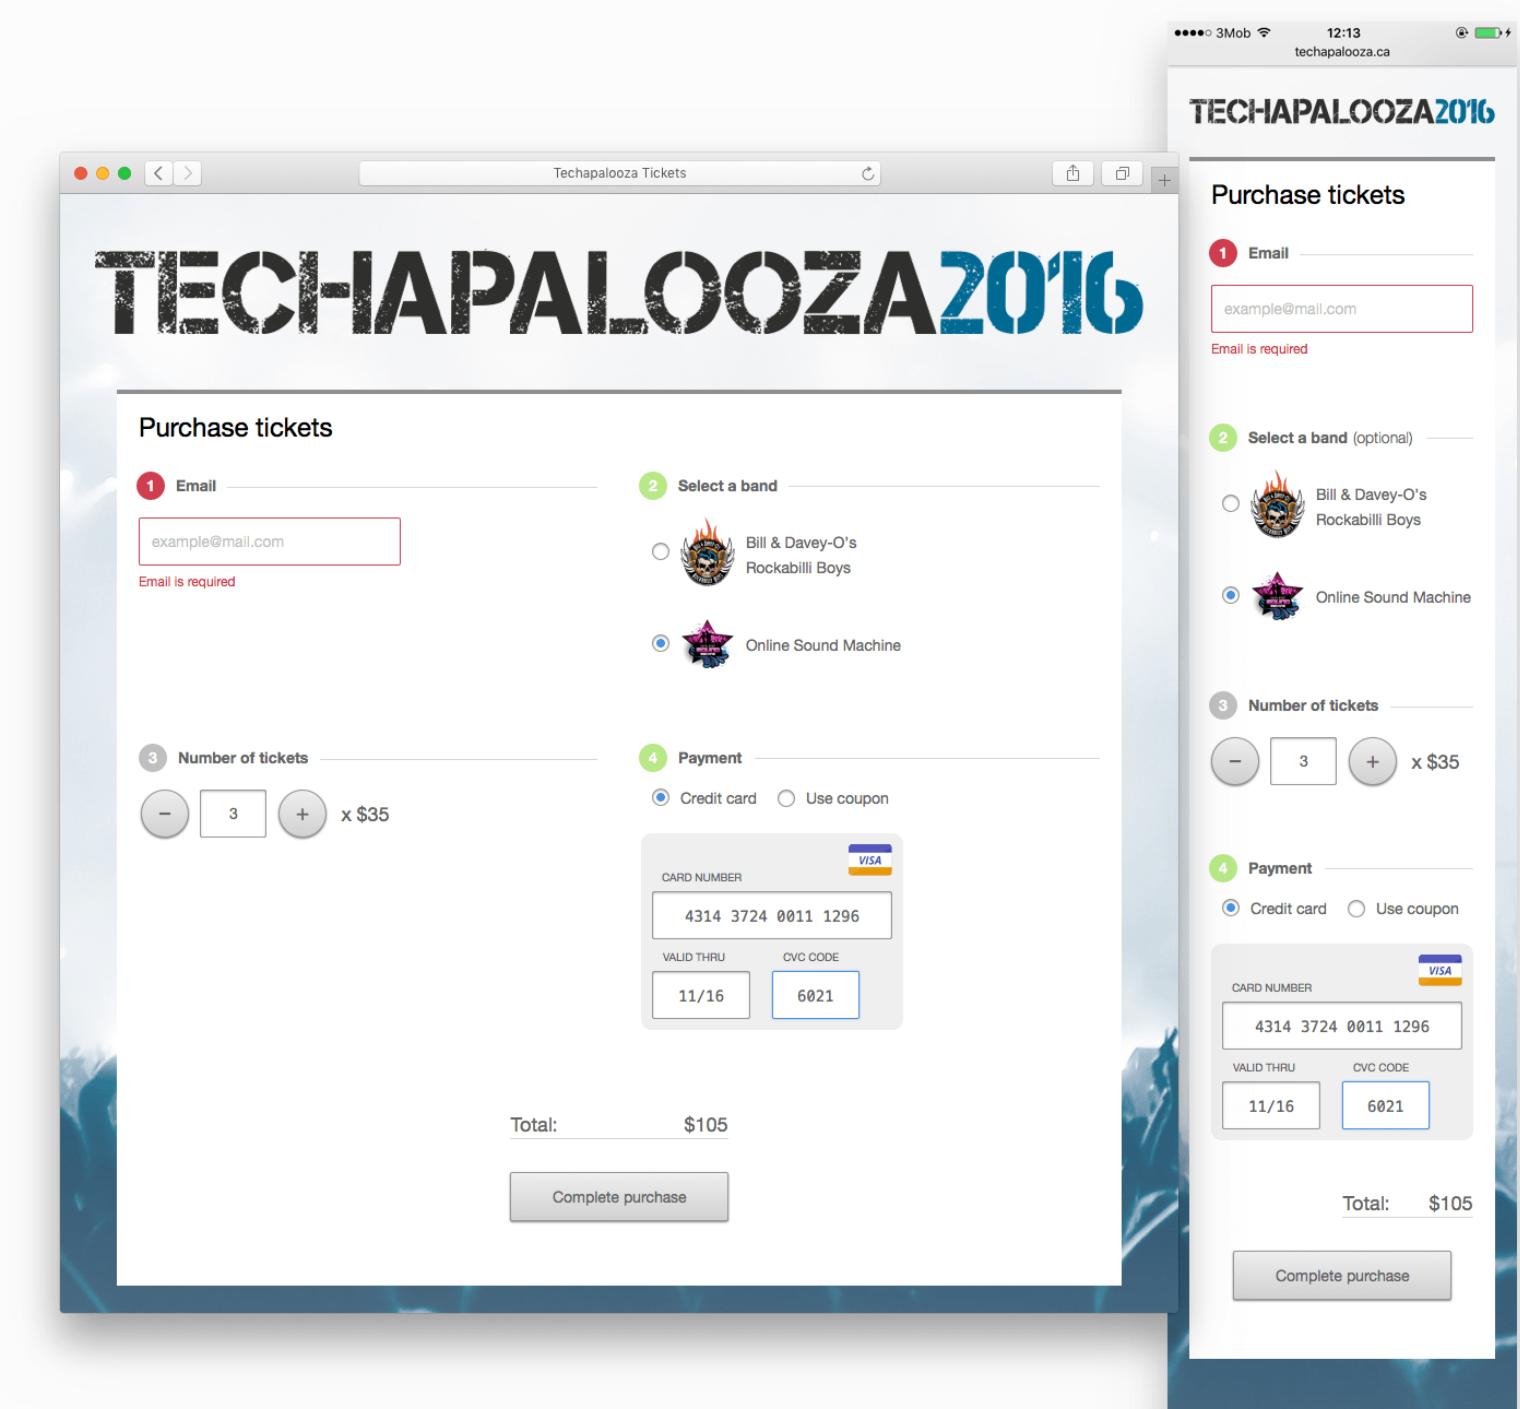

Control panel for the app

Designed a simple dashboard that would control information inside the app.

The dashboard features a navigation bar with links for News, Bands, Schedule, Coupons, and Voting. The News section shows a form for adding a new band with fields for Band logo, Band name, and Band description, along with 'Upload logo' and 'Save band' buttons. The Bands section lists three bands: 'Bill and Davey-O's Rockabilly Boys' (with a logo and a detailed description), 'Bill and Davey-O's Rockabilly Boys' (another listing with a different logo and description), and 'Antidote' (with a logo and a detailed description). The Schedule section shows a list of events with times and descriptions, each with 'Edit' and 'Delete' buttons.

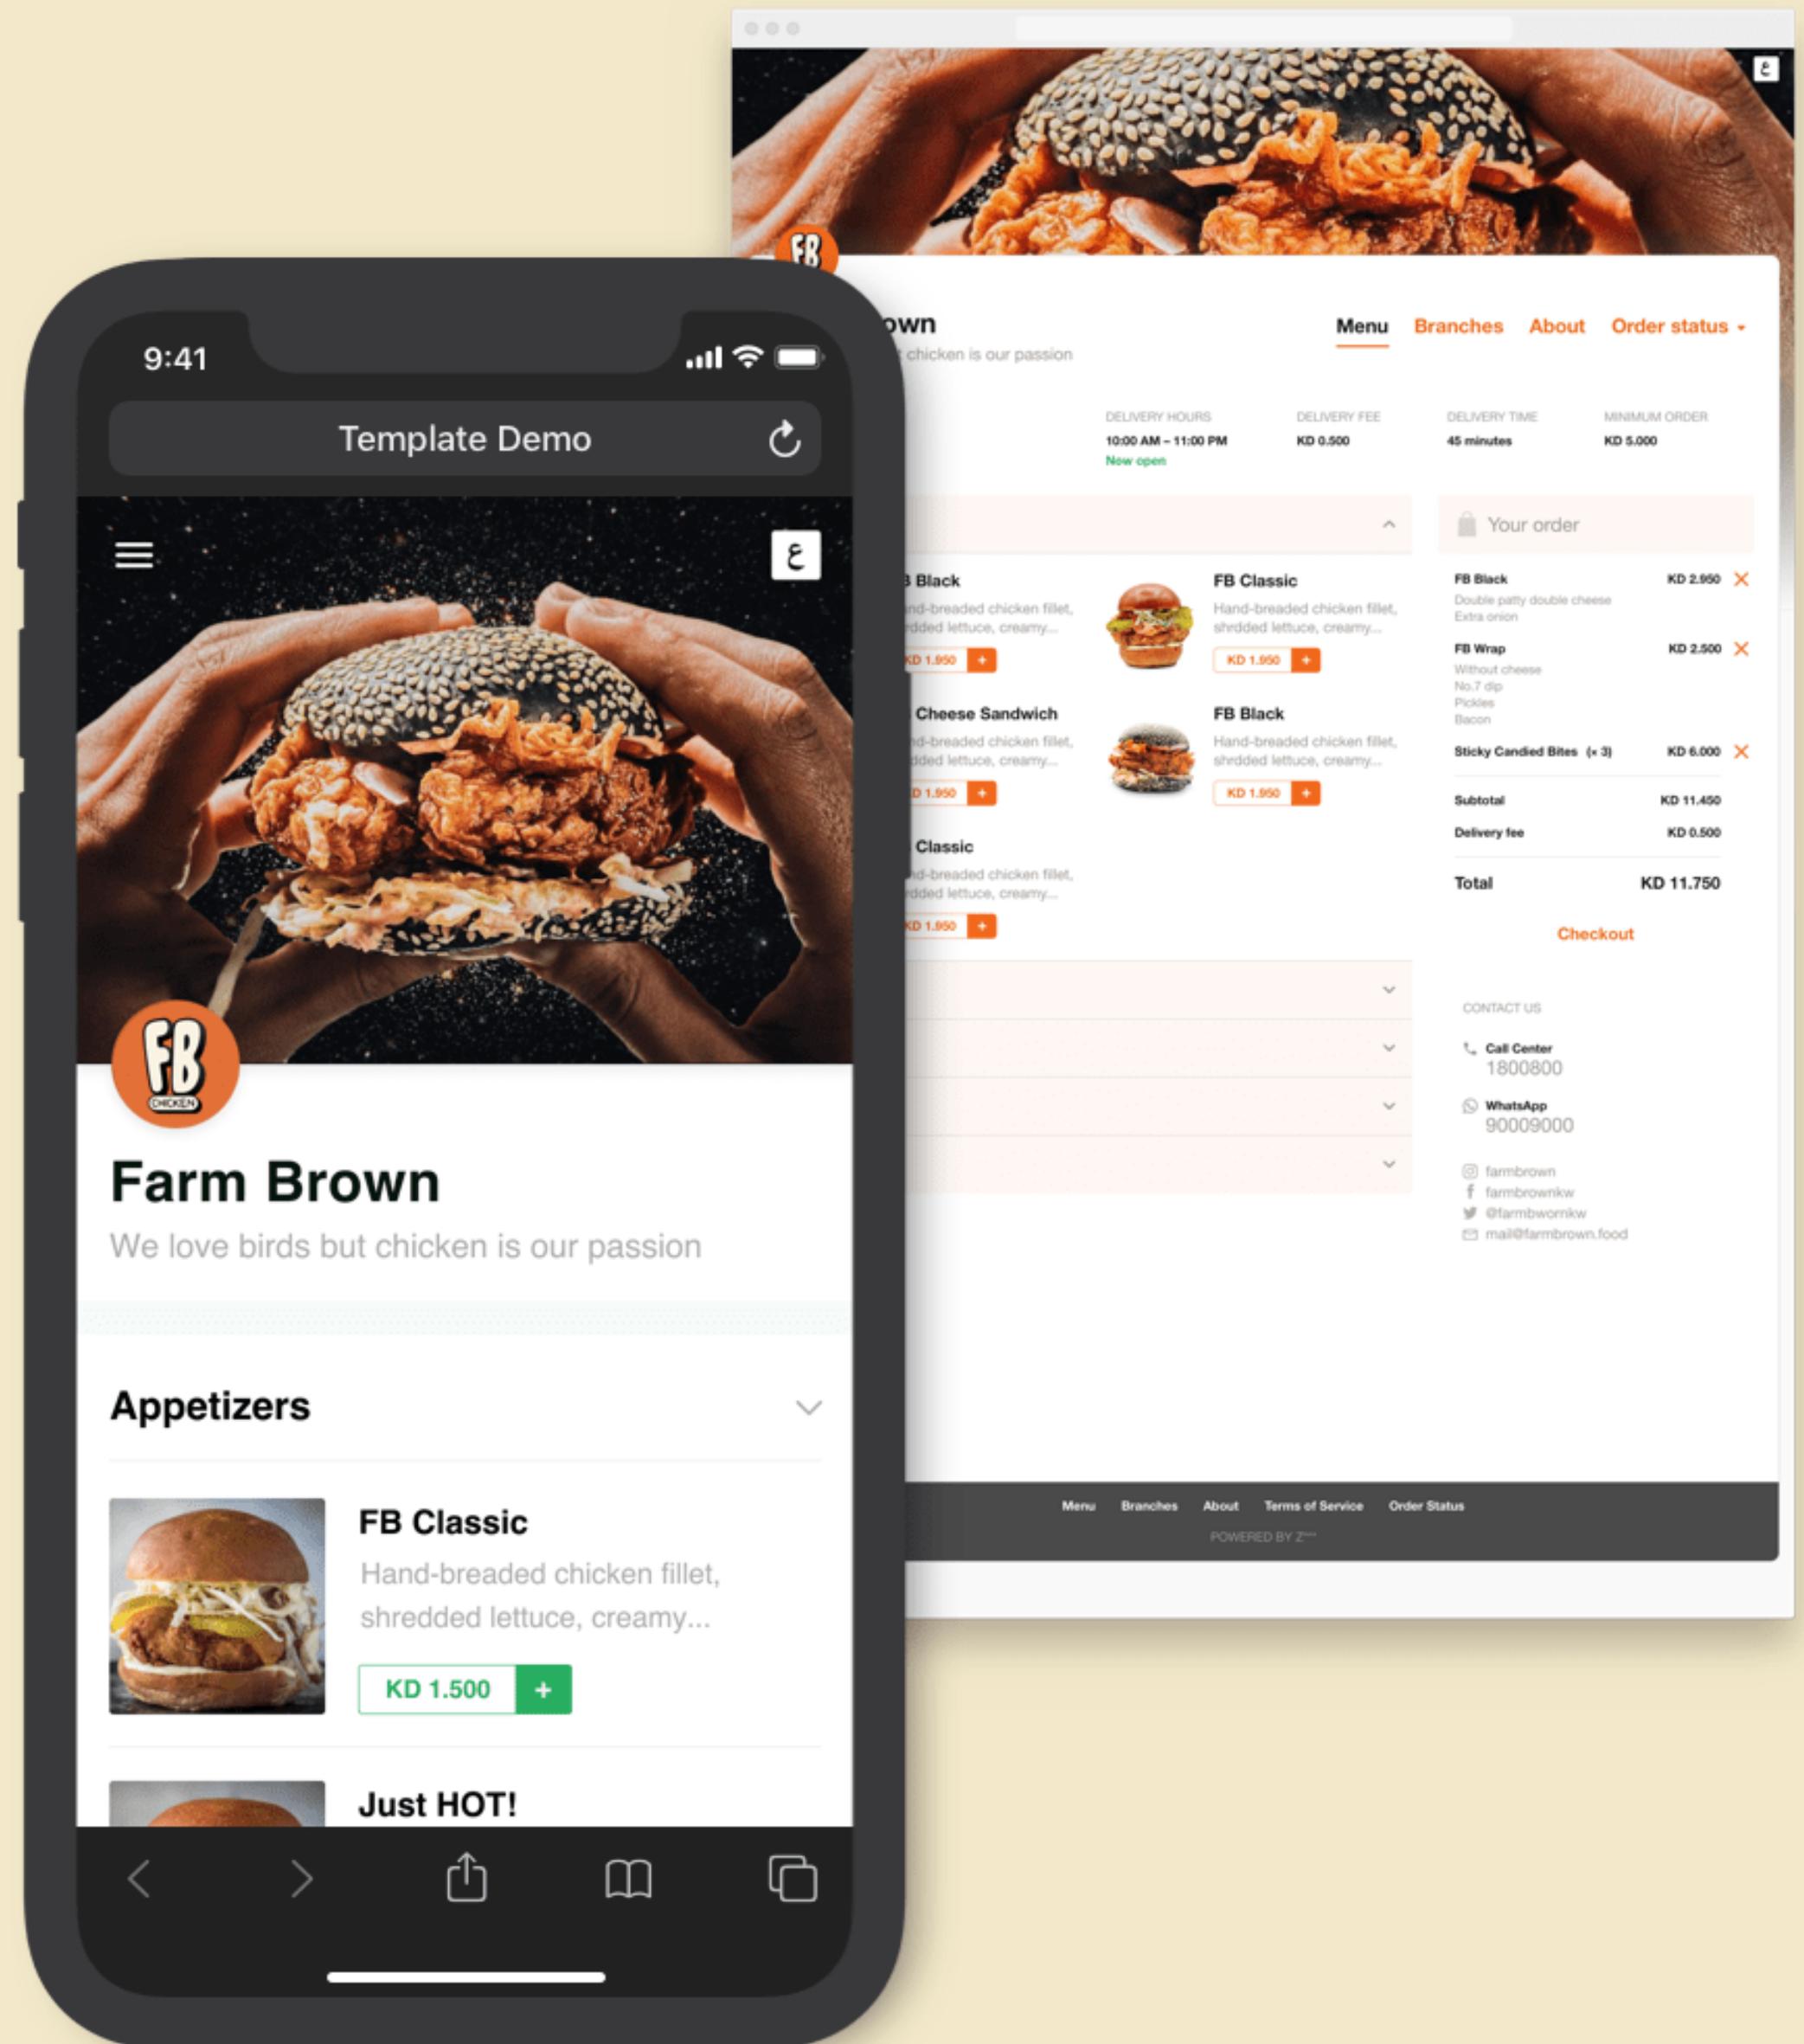

Created a separate ticket purchase web-page for people who did not want to use the app.

The ticket purchase page has four main steps: 1. Email (example@mail.com, required). 2. Select a band (radio buttons for 'Bill & Davey-O's Rockabilly Boys' and 'Online Sound Machine'). 3. Number of tickets (set to 3). 4. Payment (radio buttons for 'Credit card' or 'Use coupon', with credit card fields for card number, valid thru, and CVC code). A summary at the bottom shows a total of $105 and a 'Complete purchase' button.

Online storefront

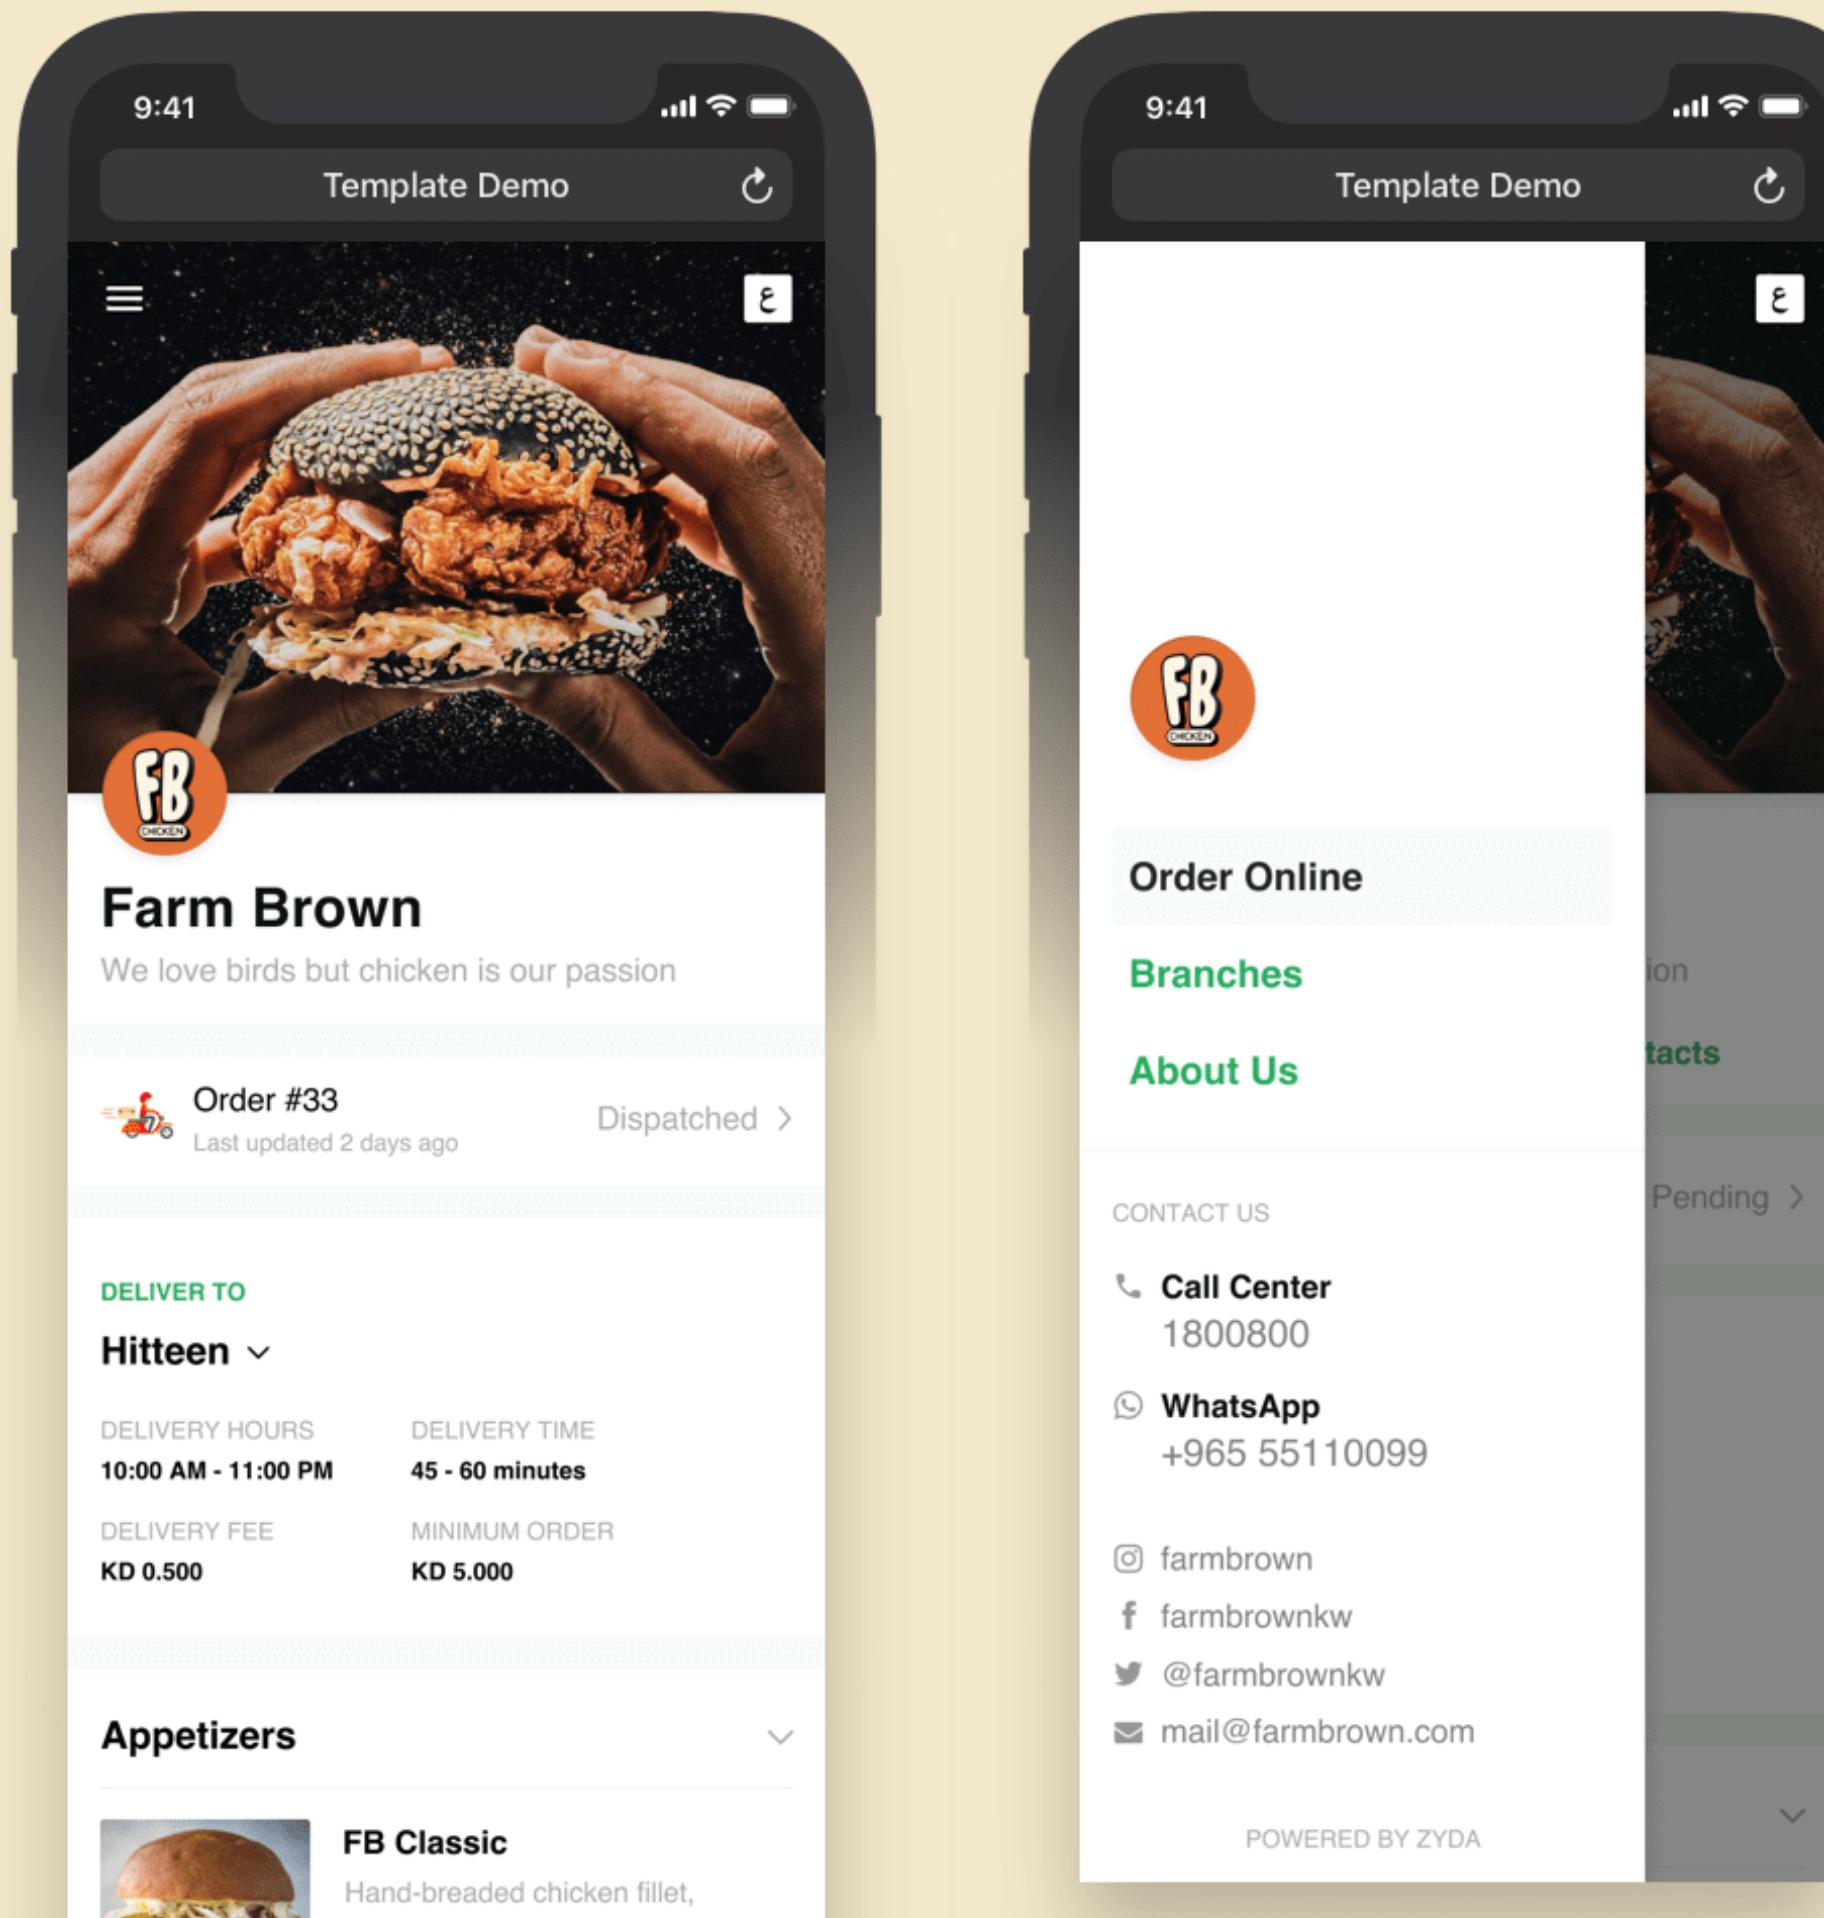

Project consisted of designing a storefront template for a service that provided small businesses with a complete online shop solution. One of the requirements was to use the Material Design system.

Adjustability

Since the design was going to be used by multiple business, some adjustability was necessary.

After a few iterations we decided to limit it to a header image, a logo and an accent colour.
